Jesse Robinson Dies in Accident At Oldtown

Exact Details Are Unknown; Officers Continuing Their Investigation

Jesse Robinson, 38, of Green Spring, W. Va., a truckman for the B. and O. Railroad Company, was killed on road in Oldtown, about 11:15 o'clock last night, but details of the fatal accident were not known at 1 o'clock this morning.

Trooper M. Frank Beamer, who with Trooper James Simmons, of the Maryland State Police started an investigation about midnight said Robinson was struck by a car driven by Willard Bradour, 22, of Oldtown, who works at the Celanese plant here.

Beamer said Bradour told him he had just left his girl's house and was on his way home when his car struck something lying in the road. Beamer said Bradour told him he thought his car had struck a place of the car. At 1 a. m. today the body was still under the car. Dr. Linne R. Conson, deputy medical officer of the county went to Oldtown to assist the state police in the investigation.

Robinson was struck directly in front of the residence of Ray Abe. Abe told Beamer that Dale Schaidt, who had been on duty at an air raid spotter station, told him he saw a man lying in the road about 11 o'clock as he was on his way home and that he appeared to be alive. No further details could be learned by the News before press time this morning.

Pershing Asks French To Join the Allies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—General John J. Pershing, aging leader of the armies in France in 1917, said tonight that "the Axis has met its Marne" and invited his former French comrades-in-arms to join the ranks of the Allies so they "will once more be free."

Pershing, who now holds the rank of general of the armies, appeared yesterday with President Roosevelt at the Armistice Day ceremonies at the tomb of the unknown soldier. He expressed himself to the French people through the medium of a letter written to Mr. Roosevelt today.

British Clear Egypt

The only enemy troops remaining in Egypt were prisoners, including nine Italian generals. A tenth Italian general was killed.

On land and in the air, the main British problem was keeping pace with the fleeing enemy and his planes. Axis air forces finally were brought to battle yesterday in the Tobruk area and twenty-three of them—including six large transport carriers—were shot down.

The main blows at the Axis survivors of the Egyptian debacle, however, were being struck from the skies some 150 miles west of the Libyan frontier.

Kbku, just inside Egypt, and Sidi Barrani both were cracked. Only a suicide rear guard was found at Buqbuq, 205 miles west of Alamein where the offensive started.

1,100 Germans Captured
Some 1,100 Germans and Italians were captured Wednesday at Halfaya Pass, dispatches said, raising Axis casualties well above 60,000. Only a small part of Rommel's army managed to reach Libya, and those that did left most of their remaining war equipment on the Egyptian sands. Some eighty tanks had been abandoned early in the retreat at El Baba because they were too slow and lacked fuel.

There was no indication whether the Axis was preparing to evacuate the remaining forces from Africa in a desert Dunkerque, or whether Rommel would try to make a determined stand.

The United States desert air task force was in large scale action, shooting down three Stuka dive bombers and starting fires among retreating enemy vehicles. Heavy bombers attacked Bengasi by night and day, and also Candia in Crete. Shipping in the harbors made up the main targets.

In all their widespread air activity from Crete to Sardinia, the Allies lost but ten planes.

Italians Bitter
It took the New Zealanders only five minutes to conquer Halfaya Pass. They found the Italian prisoners were bitter over the Germans for leaving them there.

Several hundreds, broken in spirit, were huddled together at Salum, awaiting transportation to Nile valley prison camps.

"The Germans ran away leaving us," their spokesman said. "We did not even fire a shot. We are glad to be out of the war. We never wanted to come to Africa. We were conscripted."

WAAC Officer Will Enlist Three Local Women Monday Night

Three local women will be enlisted in the WAAC at a meeting Monday, 7:30 p. m., in the City Hall, according to information received yesterday by Staff Sergeant Clarence Biehn, local Army recruiter, from Lieut. Henius, Baltimore, recruiting for the WAAC.

Lieut. Henius, one of the first class of 440 to be commissioned at the WAAC school, Ft. Des Moines, Iowa, is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin (1939), studied in London, England, and on the European continent, and was advertising manager for a Pennsylvania newspaper until she volunteered for Army service. She will be available Monday for speaking engagements and conferences where such activities will not interfere with her work at the Army recruiting headquarters, Postoffice building.

The WAAC needs women photographers, motor car drivers, hospital technicians, weather observers and for sixty-eight other jobs.

Applicants for enlistment must have two letters of recommendation.

American Charged With Violation of Canada Defence Law

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Canadian government took action today against Edward J. Rohrbough, a U. S.-born former member of the Canadian army, on a charge of violating the defense of Canada regulations by supplying information on which the American weekly magazine Time based a recent story on war prison camp disorders at Bowmanville, Ont.

The Justice department issued the following statement:

"Royal Canadian mounted police today swore out information against Edward J. Rohrbough, a citizen of the United States who enlisted in the Canadian army in 1940 and was retired in 1941 for reasons of ill-health, and who has resided in Canada since then, on a charge of violating section sixteen of the Defense of Canada regulations at Barrie, Ont.

"It is alleged that on Oct. 6 Rohrbough forwarded to the Magazine Time from Barrie, information in connection with German prisoners of war at Bowmanville and that communicating this information contravened the above regulation.

Portugal Pleased With Roosevelt's Assurance of Peace

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—The White House made public tonight a message of appreciation from the president of Portugal, Gen. Carmona, to President Roosevelt, for the latter's assurance that Portugal had nothing to fear in connection with the United States occupation of North Africa.

President Roosevelt sent the assurance to the Portuguese chief executive at the same time that he sent a similar letter to Gen. Franco of Spain.

The leader from Gen. Carmona thanked Mr. Roosevelt for the solemn assurances that my country has nothing to fear from the intentions of the United States, which is another proof of the unalterable and confident friendship existing between our two nations."

FSA Plans To Aid Small Farmers

BALTIMORE, Nov. 12 (AP)—Plans designed to increase further the output of Maryland's small farmers were formulated today at the thirteenth meeting of the Farm Security Administration state advisory committee.

FSA's efforts during the past year, through loans and technical guidance, added almost 8,500,000 pounds of milk to state's total output. District Supervisor Nicholas Quisenberry asserted in his report, and upped egg production by more than 300,000 dozen.

Gregory Hewlett, assistant director of FSA's 11-state northeastern region, reported on defense housing and migratory labor camp activity within the state during the past year. He said housing for more than 30,000 defense workers had been erected in the eleven states; more than half of it in Maryland.

Farm security turned its housing over to the federal public housing authority on Sept. 13.

Seven More Jap Ships Sunk in Western Pacific

American Submarines Taking Heavy Toll, Navy Announces

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—American submarines have sunk seven more Japanese ships in the Western Pacific, the navy announced today and damaged and probably sunk a Japanese destroyer.

These latest blows at the enemy's extended supply lines included the destruction of three large ships, a transport, tanker and cargo vessel; two medium sized ships, one a cargo carrier and the other an auxiliary; and one small cargo ship and a patrol vessel.

All the communicate said of the destroyer was that it was "damaged and believed sunk."

Announcement of these latest successes by the United States fleet of undersea raiders raised to 141 the number of Jap ships sunk or damaged by submarines since Pearl Harbor. Of this total ninety-three vessels have been sunk, twenty-one probably sunk and twenty-seven damaged.

Earlier the navy announced that serial destroyers of the American base on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons shot down seventeen Japanese dive bombers and fighter planes yesterday and probably destroyed five others while losing seven of their own planes.

Powerful

coast of Algeria. There was, however, no confirmation from the Allied side of extravagant Axis claims of bombing of aircraft carriers, cruisers, transports and supply ships.

Indeed, official Allied statements kept the make-up and movement of the Allied force under stringent military secrecy.

The force under the command of the 50-year-old Scot, appeared, nevertheless, to be carrying out the largest combined operation since the historic American-British armada of 850 ships began disembarking the Allies in Africa Sunday morning.

Obviously it was many times greater in numbers than the airborne personnel the Germans have been able to ferry to the airfields around Tunis and Bizerte. Up to last night, these were believed to number no more than 1,000 men, with planes.

Reinforcements Still Coming

Far behind Anderson the reinforcements apparently still were coming; Axis reports said thirty-eight more merchantmen had arrived in Gibraltar, joined by a large protecting force of warships; Lisbon dispatches last night described the southward progress off the Portuguese coast of bombers, transport planes and gliders.

American parachute troops already have gone into action in Africa, after a non-stop 1,500-mile flight from Britain.

In Vichy tonight, the German-controlled radio was broadcasting that the French fleet off Morocco had taken "severe losses" since Sunday morning; it was admitted that the new battleship Jean Bart had been put out of action by the sea and air power of American Rear Admiral H. K. Hewitt.

From Paris, the German-run station was broadcasting the story that Adolf Hitler had faith in the "loyalty" of the French fleet commander at Toulon, and hence had left that naval base unoccupied.

Marseille Occupied

On the Mediterranean mainland of France, Marseille was occupied and Toulon enveloped—but by passed—by at least three German panzer divisions and an unstated number of Italian motorized troops which moved in from the north and east, respectively.

The Italians also claimed they had occupied all of the island of Corsica.

From Berlin and Vichy the Germans and puppet French broadcast the cryptic announcement that Hitler had decided to set Toulon apart as a special area and not to occupy it because the French navy officers there had "made an engagement to defend themselves against all aggressors."

The Germans obviously sought to leave the impression that they had made a deal with the commanders of the Toulon squadron.

If these units still are lying off port, they may evade or strongly resist German attack from the shore.

If, as is presently reported, some of them have sailed for parts unknown, the remainder could be holding off German occupation of Toulon by the mere threat to depart.

There was, moreover, a report that Hitler had given Pierre Laval the terms of a general "peace settlement" between Germany and France by which, it appeared, the Germans still hoped to have the fleet delivered intact to them without fighting for it.

Vichy's German-occupied cabinet met during the evening, under Marshal Petain. It issued a statement seeking to deter the French in Africa from following General Henri Giraud, who after escaping from both Germany and Vichy, France, has become the man on horseback of the liberation movement in Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia.

American Troops Settle Down in City of Algeria

Await Results of Negotiations for Armistice Terms

(Editors: Under the news pooling arrangement established by the United States army in North Africa, the following dispatch was sent jointly by war correspondents William King of the Associated Press, William Stoneman of the Chicago Daily News and Ned Russell of the United Press.)

ALLIED FORCES HEADQUARTERS IN ALGERIA, Nov. 12—American troops, dusty and weary—but still grinning—today settled down to guard Algeria against the Axis while negotiations between the Allied command and the French over final armistice terms went forward. Ceaseless patrols of British fighter planes droned over the harbor and the city, maintaining a constant defense against Axis bombers.

There has been no heavy attack since that on Monday night which resulted in an Allied victory with the shooting down of twelve enemy planes.

Great quantities of anti-aircraft artillery plus a constant drone of fighters in the air have reassured the anxious population.

Now that the sound of guns has died away the Algerian people appear willing to make friends with the American and British troops.

However, many details remain to be settled such as the rate of the franc for the dollar and the pound. The inhabitants' bewilderment over the events of the last week tends to restrain fraternization at present.

There are obviously great opportunities for Allied propaganda among the Algerians, many of whom exist on the thin edge of starvation. Supplies will do more to cement good relations than twenty Allied proclamations. Moreover, throughout the dreary winter to come supplies will provide a promise to the enslaved peoples of Europe what to expect when the Allied invasion of the continent begins.

The presence of Gen. Henri Giraud is not generally known to the people of Algiers and generally the Allied propaganda had been silenced while the newspapers continued to carry the Vichy accounts of what happened in North Africa instead of the truth.

American Officers of officers there to contact them and obtain essential military information.

"Clark and all men on the mission volunteered enthusiastically," he added.

Leaving London secretly by train, the party reached Africa by devious means. At an unnamed point in North Africa a light was to have been flashed in a house to let the men know the coast was clear.

But the appointed hour arrived and passed without any light appearing, and the party had to wait for some time in extreme danger before the signal finally was given.

The members of the party entered the house, where they engaged in close consultation with French officers who had arrived there, mostly in civilian clothes.

"We conferred all day and all night until we had gathered all the information we wanted," Clark said. A suspicious Arab servant, meanwhile, informed the police. The French officers received word that the police were on the way.

"I never saw such excitement in my life," Clark said with a laugh. Maps disappeared like lightning. A French general in military uniform changed into civilian clothes in a minute flat, and I last saw him going out the window. They were going in all directions.

Clark and his staff gathered up papers and guns and hid in a wine cellar. The owner of the house met the police. The general crouched in the cellar with a revolver in one hand and 15,000 francs in the other.

"Shoot or Bribe?" "If the police came down, I was uncertain whether to shoot them or bribe them," he said.

Meanwhile, a British Commando officer who accompanied the party whispered: "I'm afraid if I hold this corks back any longer I'm going to choke to death."

"I'm afraid you won't choke," Clark told him.

The police went away after an hour. A boat upset crossing a small piece of water nearby caused the loss of clothing and money—but not of papers.

"We lost every stitch of our clothes and I lost some $19,000 in gold," Clark said. "I wonder if Morgenthau (the secretary of the treasury) will get after me for that."

The party scrambled ashore with only its papers and underclothing. Hiding in the woods from time to time, walking and shivering, the men ultimately kept a secret rendezvous with a United Nations transport, which took them to London. They arrived eight days after the start of their journey.

ment to defend themselves against all aggressors, the German authorities have decided that the fortified port of Toulon will not be occupied and our ships will be safeguarded."

German reports from Vichy insisted that no ships had left the home-based fleet.

Despite Hitler's protestations, Allied observers on the continent read into the communicate the inference that the Germans stopped because a costly fight might develop against the naval big guns.

Germans Fear To Attack
The difficulty of boarding a fleet that does not want to be boarded by hastily drawn-up land forces is apparent, and there is always the possibility of scuttling by the crews in the event of hostilities.

The complete loss of the fleet through scuttling would be to the advantage of the Allies, which have a predominance of sea power; or if the French hold out against all comers their thus neutralized ships also would be to the Allies' interests.

British authorities have pointed out that foreign ships have little or no naval value to a captor, that they must be operated by their own crews and that their value in fighting could be retained only by wining over their crews and commanders as allies.

As willing allies, however, the French fleet would be of value to either side in the growing naval and air battles of the Mediterranean.

"We Are Losing," Rep. Maas Asserts

"Defeats and Disasters Twisted" Congressman Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Rep. Maas (R-Minn.) said tonight that "we are still losing the war in the Pacific," that the nation's armed forces lacked unity of command and that official reports had minimized and twisted out "defeats and disasters."

"Unless we can drive the Japs back to their original islands and deprive them of their fantastic new empire, the end of western civilization is near now," he maintained in an address prepared for broadcast by the Columbia network. Maas, ranking Republican on the House Naval committee, recently returned from four months' duty in the Southwest Pacific as a colonel with the marines.

He asserted that the loss of three American and one Australian cruiser in the Solomons islands the night of Aug. 8 occurred despite a warning "hours in advance" of the Japanese fleet's approach. He contended that the attacking Japanese force caught our fleet "literally asleep" and "were gone out of range of our guns without ever even being fired upon by our ships."

great progress," he said. "We have made a successful landing and have opened up a new theater for fighting. We have also won the support of a French army."

"But," the undersecretary asserted, "we have not yet won a decisive victory over our adversaries in the Mediterranean area, and it would be a mistake to suppose that the road from now on will be easy."

Listing the equipment which had to be carried on an operation such as the North African landing, Patterson called on industrialists to redouble their production of war weapons.

convention that labor, which is represented on the board, wanted only to strengthen it and "nothing can be so dangerous to the organized labor movement as a weakening or a termination" of the board.

Besides industry-wide bargaining, the resolution, which the convention adopted unanimously, urged that the board require insertion of an arbitration clause in all collective bargaining agreements to prevent overloading of the board's machinery with unsettled grievances. A statement of policy on wage retroactivity also was asked.

Executive Order Extended
"In its new and expanded role," said the resolution, "even more basically than in its original role, the board now stands at the heart of the industrial relations machinery of the nation. x x x The executive order of October 3 has extended the jurisdiction of the board to include all employees and all industries." The board must make a forthright and overall determination accepting full jurisdiction over all employees and all industries for all purposes.

Petaun Showing Strain
Informants from the former unoccupied area said aged Marshal Petaun is showing the strain of the crisis.

These informants represented Petaun as not yet decided on his course but tonight the Vichy radio (now obviously under the domination of the Germans) broadcast that both Petaun and Laval have indicated their intention to remain in office and continue the policy they followed before the Germans extended their hold.

Committee Asks 48-Hour Week

Senate Group Also Favors Single Administrator for Manpower

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Senate Defense Investigating committee urged today the appointment of a single administrator to direct both industrial and civilian manpower mobilization and recommended a forty-eight-hour week in industry.

To avert any inflationary trend from resulting overtime payments, the committee proposed that overtime in excess of the 1942 average be paid in bonds redeemable after the war or useable for taxes.

In war industries, where the government buys the output, the committee suggested that all overtime be paid for at time and a half, as at present. In civilian industries, where price ceilings are a factor, it suggested that overtime beyond the present average command no premium above the regular basic wage.

Another Senate group heard testimony that a worker in the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation plant at Fort Worth, Tex., had made a bid that several bombers had been brought in there "to make it look like they came off our assembly line" in order to deceive President Roosevelt on his visit.

Motorists Surrender "B" and "C" Books

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—The OPA announced today that thirty-eight motorists, whom investigators spotted at nearby horse race tracks and at three New York football fields, had been required to surrender their "B" and "C" books for using supplemental gasoline ration coupons illegally.

Francis Currie, chief attorney in the OPA's New York office, said that among the motorists was a physician who said that "professional duties" took him to the Empire City race track.

"Loving" Husband Often Begrudges His Wife Money

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A correspondent asks what's the matter with her husband. He has ideas far beyond the average man, is scrupulously honest, and has a good income, yet, he begrudges her a penny to spend on her clothes or one dime to keep in her pocket-book. He makes many sweet speeches about keeping his wife innocent and has high hopes for lovely children, when they can afford them. Apparently he fails to realize that jealousy, in its worst form, motivates his conduct. How a woman whose heart is full of bitterness and resentment over her husband's treatment can be the mother of children who will love and respect their father is a riddle to which this husband has given scant attention. Here's part of the letter:

Husband Has Ideals

"My husband is young and true to me and his ideals are definitely above the average," writes Mrs. Scrimped. "He claims to love me dearly but has a queer way of showing it."

"He enjoys buying this for our car and our home, but when I need clothes of any description, that's a different matter. I lived in the same three dresses for the past three years. He makes good money, yet I never have two dimes to jingle together in my pocket-book," she declares.

"When I shop he goes to the grocery store with me and there's an argument if I select anything which costs a penny more than he thinks it should," she continues.

"He has never been given any reason to doubt my fidelity but when we talk about the lovely children we'll have some day—I wonder. Does a wife who is kept down to the extent I have been bear children who will love and respect their father?" asks "Mrs. Scrimped."

As those lovely children, who are going to dote and respect their parsimonious father who takes this mean way of showing his jealousy, have not yet arrived, why not get a job?

It seems to me that when a man's miserliness and jealousy go hand-in-hand to the extent you've stated in your letter—and I haven't given all of it—that the only self-respecting thing a woman can do is to earn her own money. Shops are looking for thousands of clerks; stenographers and typists are at a premium, and factories are clamoring for women helpers.

In these topsy-turvy war days, it seemed not unusual when a pretty young bride departed, alone, on her honeymoon, destination 800 miles distant.

The wedding ceremony was performed in the downtown office of a telephone company; the traditional "I do" was said over a telephone wire, and with Marine Private Austin Holmes repeating the same words, the couple were made man and wife.

Dr. T. T. Roberts, pastor of the Strauss Memorial Christian church, Benning, D. C., tied the knot and kissed the bride in the absence of the bridegroom. The parents of both contracting parties were present at the telephone marriage.

The Prairie Wives
Looking back over the history of marriages in this country, it seems to have been the unusual marriages which have lasted. Consider the girl brides, three or four generations ago, who climbed into the covered wagons and trekked to the Western frontier with their husbands to take chances with Indians, blizzards and unknown hardships.

The trek lasted sometimes two and three years. Children were born in the covered wagons sometimes, and little heaps of stones, rude monuments surviving to this day, told of heartbreaking deaths on the trail. Yet this country has never produced better women than these prairie wives who, when they pledged their troth "for better or for worse", lived up to it.

When I was a very young girl, I was taken to see an old lady, 90, in Wyoming. She had been a covered wagon bride. Her husband had prospered; her sons and grandsons had achieved distinction and wealth.

Forethought Helps
She showed me the blue calico gown in which she had been married, treasured in a box worth a hundred times the value of its contents. Her mother had wanted her to be married in white, with bridesmaids and all the lovely things that a bride cherishes. But the old lady told me she knew the money would be needed, and her forethought helped to buy that first flock of sheep through which the family fortunes came. And the blue calico gown and the little square-toed shoes which had walked over so many weary miles marked a wedding in which they lived happily ever after.

A Mighty Weapon In American Hands

A MIGHTY WEAPON, although intangible, is in the hands of the American forces who are fighting for our freedom in the lands and the islands elsewhere on the globe.

It was depicted in the cartoon by Darling published on this page yesterday under the caption of "The Yanks Take Algiers." In the background was shown huddled in front of a structure of Arabesque architecture a group of natives attired in fezzes and flowing white robes; in the foreground an approaching contingent of American doughboys, with one of them yelling back from shielding hand "sall right, fellows. Just a Shriners' convention!"

The weapon is the American sense of humor, nothing exactly like which exists anywhere else in the world. It is something breathing of adventure and fun, of cynical reality, of derring-do or bust and of confidence grounded in righteous cause.

That will prove one of the mightiest of many weapons wielded by our men of the fighting forces. It is the same sense that pioneered America and built it through all kinds of hardships and handicaps into the great nation it is. It is one of the weapons that will help all of us back on the home front to match the spirit of our fighters in supporting them to the utmost of our ability.

Yes, we can do it, and take it—with a laugh.

Coalition Plan Has Hurdles

SENATOR VANDENBERG'S PROPOSAL that Republican and Democratic groups in both House and Senate join in a victory coalition to speed congressional action on necessary war measures has much merit, but it should be carefully examined for its implications.

One of its effects would be to separate the president from the little group of New Dealers upon whom he has called for advice in all critical war situations. He has not consulted the opposition. He has conducted the war as a New Deal enterprise.

The president is rated as an unusually able politician, but this reputation is based on his long march at the head of a majority. He had two terms as governor of New York, followed by three successful campaigns for the presidency.

He is now confronted by a different political situation. He suffered a severe setback in wartime. He all but lost the House of Congress. The call upon his political sagacity now is to deal with a robust opposition which in critical moments can undoubtedly summon enough anti-New Deal members to defeat the administration.

It will be hard for the president to put aside the dreamers, spenders and state socialists who have ridden along with him in victory, and to deal with strong, aggressive and unyielding congressional leaders—men of the type of Joe Martin. The role of pleader and advocate will not be pleasant after all these years of giving the orders, wielding the rubber stamp and handing out the jobs.

But Mr. Roosevelt can do it, and he may see, as this coalition plan is discussed, that he will be able to do it better if he meets the proposal in the making.

Help for Doctors On the Home Front

DEPARTURE of so many physicians from their home communities to take up duty in the armed forces is naturally creating a health hazard to which citizens generally should lend their help.

The family doctor at home is, accordingly, carrying a heavy burden nowadays because he has the added cares devolving upon him by the absence of so many of his younger colleagues.

So, the advice is given that the doctor's time be not wasted, because it is valuable.

The doctor should not be called at night, if all that is wanted is sympathy or reassurance.

Physicians left to man the home front should be allowed to get what rest they can.

This advice is contributed by Dr. Arthur F. Jones, Cumberland physician, who was recently called into service with the army medical corps.

Dr. Jones also asks the public not to ask the doctor to make home visits if it is at all possible to go to his office. Fewer home calls mean that physicians can attend to three or four times as many patients at their offices and at the hospitals, he says.

Red Cross home nursing and first aid courses, Dr. Jones adds, will also take a good deal of pressure from overworked doctors. Many minor home accidents can be treated by persons with such training, thus freeing the doctor's precious time for more serious cases. In such cases, it is suggested that Red Cross headquarters be asked by telephone for the necessary information.

Co-operation by the people will help a lot and serve to cope better with the situation resulting from the loss of so many doctors from the home front.

Individual Reputation And National Morale

LARGE BUSINESS ORGANIZATIONS have learned by experience that even if they haven't anything to sell, their names and the products or services they offer must be kept before the public. That is why newspapers carry much good will advertising—known as "institutional" to the trade.

The curious part is that these good will advertisements are usually more attractive and more inspiring than ordinary run-of-the-mill copy. Greater care goes into the text and composition of these displays than formerly. And yet most of these advertisers will have nothing to offer civilian customers until after the war.

The aircraft companies are doing one of the best jobs. At any rate, in thrilling picture and story they are dining it into the American public that the day when every family will have its own plane is just around the corner. That may be something of an exaggeration, but aviation progress due to the stimulus of war certainly has brought that day much closer.

New materials, especially substitutes which in a number of instances are better than the original, are being pre-viewed for a buying public of the future. New machines and labor-saving devices, economical short cuts—all kinds of lure is held up to the eager gaze of a public ready to buy when the word is given.

With civilian goods curtailed, many wholesale houses and some retailers have little on their shelves to offer customers. But they have a reputation to maintain and, more important, a country to strengthen in morale and unified effort.

A Note on the Effort To Revive Prohibition

IT NEED NOT BE ASSUMED that all religious organizations are in consonance with the foolish effort afoot to bring back the ignoble prohibition era.

For instance, The Churchman, independent publication of the Protestant Episcopal church, edited by the Rev. Guy Emery Shipley, deprecates the movement.

"One of the most disheartening furors of the present moment is the effort being made by godly people with short memories and shorter judgment to plunge this country again into prohibition," the publication says.

"We made what Mr. Hoover called 'the noble experiment' once—and God save us from doing it all over again. The Churchman fought prohibition in those days and it will always fight efforts to revive it. The experiment came close to ruining one entire generation of young people, to say nothing of turning otherwise decent citizens into lawbreakers filled with pride, and it will do the same thing again if we are foolish enough to respond to misled reformers."

Our distressing and costly experience with prohibition carries an impressive lesson, but it is quite likely to be sufficient unto the day hereof.

When Vice President Wallace intimated that the election proved the American voters—particularly the farmers—were dumb, Ickes decided not to comment on the election.

When the big Axis retreat sets in the Germans will have one advantage over their pals, the Japs. The Nazis at least won't get their feet wet.

The order to stop the digging of gold has put, we may hope, a ceiling on the activities of salesmen of phony mining stocks.

You

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I heard a man say he knew You, knew You well, had known You since childhood, knew You like the inside of his pocket, knew You as well as he knew himself.

Presumptuous, arrogant, naive fellow! How could he know You so completely? . . . Ridiculous, absurd, impossible! He couldn't know You so well. Not he, not I, not anybody else could know You so well!

You! Laughing, weeping, swaggering, humbled, hopeful, despairing.

You! So sure of yourself, so certain of your way through life. So wistful, so doubtful, so filled with uncertainty about the right thing to do.

You! Cynical, wisecracking, sneering, doubting, pretending to be so tough, so smart. Incurable child of a hard-boiled generation.

You! With a dream in your heart. Stopping to talk with children over a garden wall. Picking a flower and wearing it with an air on your coat.

You! Pretending to know what it's all about. Laying down the law. Telling people what's what. Repeating what he said and what you said and how you won the argument and sent the policeman away in tears.

You! Not so sure. Bewildered. Wondering if people ever do grow up, ever do pierce the mystery, ever learn all the truth that is buried beneath the hard and shiny surface of living.

You! With your chin sticking out and your eyes looking straight ahead and your muscles tense and your fists doubled up. You, a tough guy!

You! Not so tough after all. Saying, "Let's be friends." Shaking hands. With a soft spot in your heart and a wish for friendship, and a fear of loneliness.

And THAT man says he understands you! Is that true? Does he know you so well, know the gentle beneath the rough, the doubt beneath the arrogance, the truth behind the bold pretense? If he does, he's a far better man than I ever thought he was.

Status of Stalin On African Push Is Still Puzzling

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—There's something rather puzzling about the information given out by President Roosevelt in Washington and Prime Minister Churchill in London with respect to the time when the North African offensive was decided upon and just what Josef Stalin was told about it.

Evidently answering questions of the press and intending to strike back at critics who were demanding a "second front" last summer, both the president and the prime minister made some disclosures which seem to raise questions of Allied unity. On the face of it, the impression is given either that Josef Stalin was an outsider not cognizant of the facts or that Mr. Stalin knew all along what was going on but didn't consider the North African offensive to be a second front or a sufficiently strong diversionary movement of German forces that would aid Russia.

Agreement Last Summer

The president disclosed that by the end of June there was general agreement on the African offensive and that by the end of July certain fundamental questions, such as the point of attack and matters involving shipping and the manufacturing problem, were decided upon. Mr. Roosevelt revealed that the second front had already been determined upon by Britain and America last summer, and the approximate date decided upon, but in the succeeding months he and Mr. Churchill had "to take it on the chin" from persons on the outside not cognizant of the facts.

Simultaneously in London, the prime minister in a speech, not to the press but to the Parliament, explained why a second-front attack on the continent "might have been a relief to our feelings," but that it would have been a disaster which "would have been no help to Russia" and instead "would have been a great disservice."

Assurance in Writing

Then came the important disclosure by Mr. Churchill, namely, that last June he had given the Russian government a written document making it clear that Britain was preparing "to make a landing on the continent in 1942 but could not promise to do so." Perhaps this was a reference to the raid at Dieppe because he was speaking of the European continent and not North Africa.

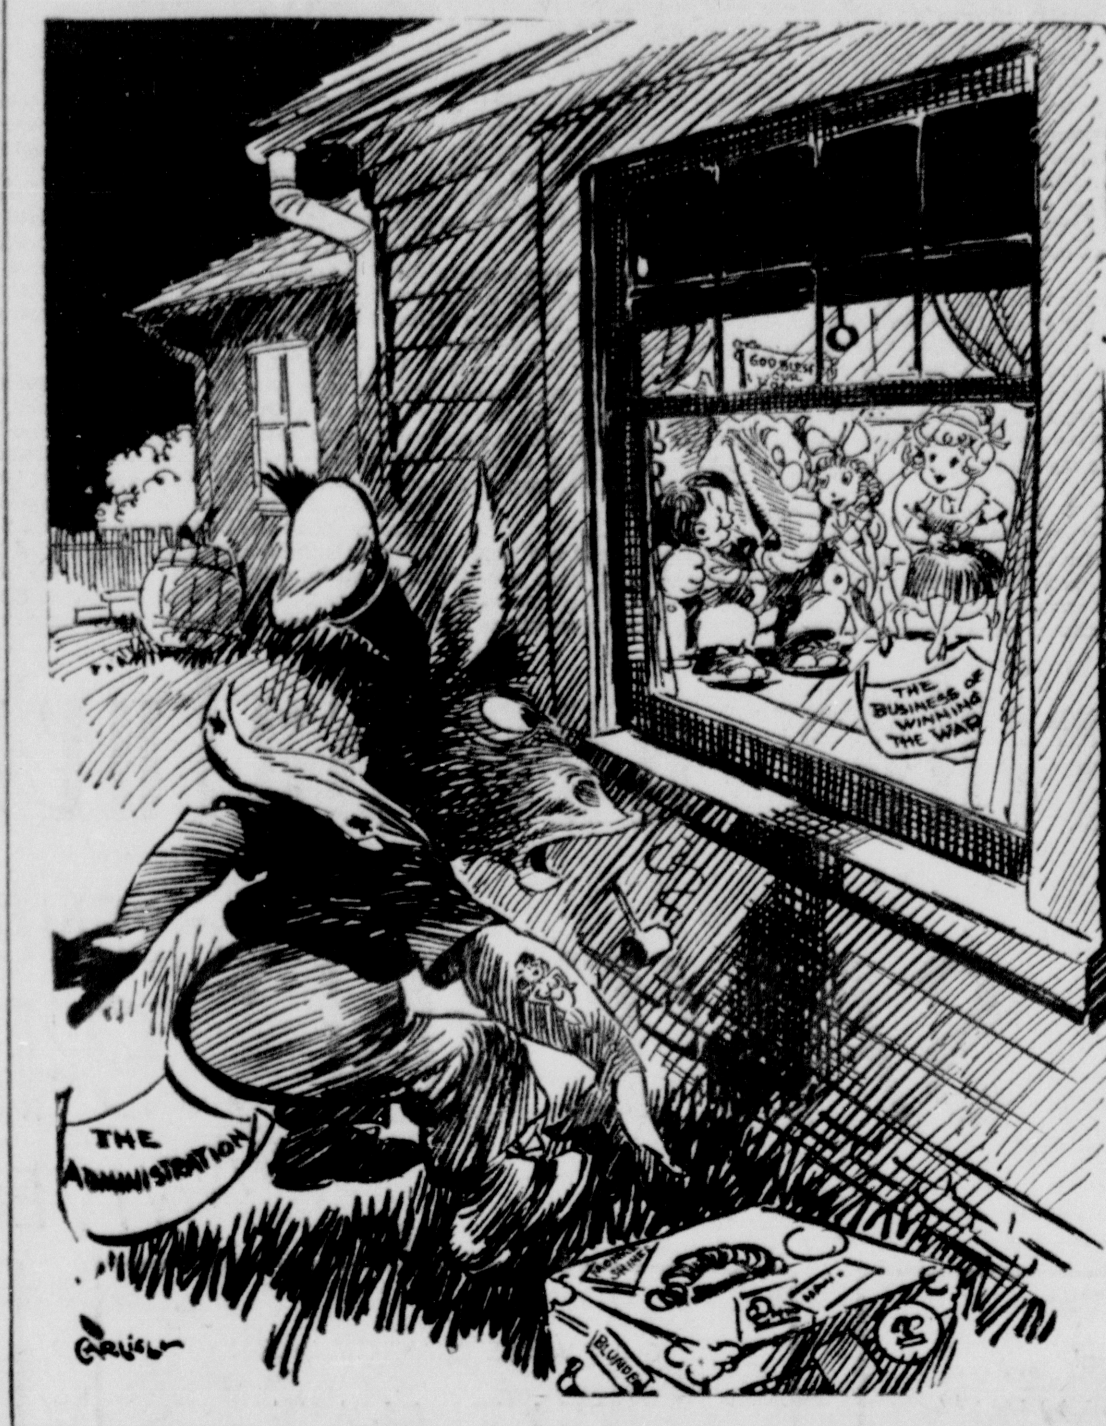

The prime minister went on to make this significant comment:

"I am certainly not one who needs to be prodded. If anything, I am a prod."

To whom was the prime minister referring? To Wendell Willkie who, in discussing a second front, while in Moscow, said that sometimes military leaders needed to be prodded? Or was Mr. Churchill referring to a public statement issued by Premier Stalin to the Associated Press shortly after Mr. Willkie left, reiterating his demand for a second front? Or was the prime minister answering Mr. Stalin's speech on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Soviet republic last week. On that occasion, the Soviet chief pointed out that the whole operation in Egypt involved a small number of army divisions for both the Germans and the British and did not, in effect, constitute a diversion that could relieve pressure on the Stalingrad and Caucasus fronts. He was still calling for a bigger second front.

But all this still doesn't explain why both the prime minister and the president on the same day took occasion to answer critics. Certainly they must have known that if they were slapping at Willkie, they were blasting away also at the principal exponent of a second front, namely, the head of an Allied government whose millions of soldiers have made the supreme sacrifice on the plains of Russia so that Britain and America might have time to organize to ward off the Nazi conquerors of Europe. It's all very puzzling.

ENOCH ARDEN'S RETURN

Invasion of Southern France Is Viewed As Another Colossal Blunder by Hitler

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Hitler's excuse that he wanted the rest of France, because we intended to invade it now, was pure ersatz.

Our North African campaign would not have been planned the way it was, if the South of France had been one of our immediate goals.

He gave away his correct analysis of our intentions when he rushed reinforcements to Tunisia to bolster the slim Nazi and Italian marine force there. His real problem was to keep us from breaking through and cutting off the escape of Rommel's army from North Africa.

The Nazi seizure of France was apparently the only prestige-gathering move left in Hitler's dwindling bag of tricks. It was a military mistake. All he did was commit himself to defense of more territory, thereby weakening his stand of arms in the lowlands, and reserves for the Russian front.

Here was the only thing left that he could get without fighting, but to take it, he drove the French into our camp, ruined their show of resistance in North Africa, undertook the obligation to feed and maintain order over a few million more hostile people.

The hour glass in Berlin is running low.

Ante-Mortem Snuff

The December American Magazine article by Harry Hopkins is being handed around Washington, as an advance warning of how the government intends to uproot most citizens and transplant them involuntarily into the final war effort.

Often such official presidential authorities as Hopkins and Mrs. Roosevelt write, as their personal opinions, what the White House has in mind to do. Their articles are supposed to prepare the public mind, and obviously this is what Hopkins intended this time.

But the magazine was prepared weeks ago, and the article perhaps weeks before that. Since then, many if not all of Hopkins's thunderous expectations have been outdated by events.

For instance, he predicated his picture partly on the possibility of the British losing the Suez, Russia surrendering and America being invaded.

Also, there has been an election since he wrote—and since that election, Mr. Roosevelt has announced nothing would be done about a selective draft service for workers until after the first of the year. Union labor, too, has pushed its pressure against the draft right upon the president's desk.

In Abeyance

What Hopkins foretold in the magazine is, therefore, in abeyance at least. He predicted a $10,000-a-year-man might be thrust into a $3,000 job (maybe the treasury will have something to say about indispensable tax revenues before that is done).

He prophesied citizen draft boards would be established, like army draft boards, in all districts. (It is fairly well agreed at the top now that a single draft organization for industry and army should do whatever is done.)

"Able bodied persons will be given a wide range of choice as to what they will do," he wrote. "But if they don't move voluntarily, their manpower organization will direct them to a specific job." (Legislation for this would have to be authorized by Congress and the need shown.)

He estimated half the workers would be taken out of the paper printing and publishing industry, one-third from food, half from garages and filling stations, nearly all from clocks, jewelry, and so on. (Congress is already raising the question of increasing the work week to forty-eight hours, instead, and Mr. Roosevelt's labor-management committee has recommended training women, students, unemployed, etc., to see if these steps will not solve the problem.)

Mr. Hopkins, authoritative as he is, "may not have had the right dose."

Peculiar Poll Alibi

Dr. Gallup, the pollster, is backing up Vice President Wallace's unique argument that the election was a victory for the New Deal, saying that the record number of voters who stayed away from the polls were New Dealers, and that if they all had voted, the New Deal would have won its usual victory.

This reasoning may appeal to Dr. Gallup, because he had the worst prediction on the national election of any I saw published.

He was worse than the Democratic claims. The Democrats expected to lose ten to fifteen House seats, but Dr. Gallup's forecast (Oct. 31) said:

"The chief surprise in next Tuesday's election will be the continued strength of the Democrats nationally, as shown in the congressional races. The Democratic party will have virtually the same majority of seats in the House the next two years as they have had since 1938."

Poll Probe Talked

This has caused a couple of Republican senators to talk about a congressional investigation of polls.

But where Dr. Gallup's explanation of his error proves itself false is in the New York State returns (where his poll of Dewey's vote was almost exact).

The Republican vote for congressmen in New York city was eight per cent larger than in 1938 while Dewey's vote was only three per cent over 1938.

Also, the Dunn survey shows the national loss in the vote of Democratic candidates for Congress was only one to two percent below 1938.

Few non-partisan political experts will believe the election result was anything less than it seemed to be.

Drastic Shakeup In the Cabinet Is Seen As Likely

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON.—Vice President

Henry A. Wallace's diagnosis of the recent election result as a Roosevelt administration victory, because the Democrats did not lose control of the Senate and House of Representatives, has caused a considerable amount of smiling in Washington political circles. To be more exact, they are not exactly smiling, so far as the Democrats are concerned. They're grins, instead, which don't signify satisfaction, but merely imply the would-be smilers' contention that a severe kick in the pants isn't necessarily fatal.

There is, however, a substantial bit of argument to the effect that present members of the cabinet ought to offer their resignations in a cluster.

By Democrats, Too

This proposition's advanced by some Democrats as well as Republicans.

The Republicans themselves don't insist that all such resignations should all be accepted. They think, though, that several of 'em should be. The Republicans say so on general principles; the Democrats as well wishers toward their own party.

Frances Perkins is panned especially. "Ma" may be done a certain amount of injustice.

The dope is that her Labor department has been unduly favored at the expense of agriculture, and that the farmers are on her trail to a degree that makes her unfairly conspicuous. Yet, of course, the farmers complain that Agricultural Secretary Wickard hasn't taken adequate care of 'em.

Morgenthau Another

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau goes almost without saying, is on the pan for current taxes.

War and Navy Secretaries Stimson and Knox naturally are accused of derelictions in their respective fields of operation.

State Secretary Hull apparently has functioned pretty competently. He hasn't quite lined up Argentina and Chile, but he's gradually acquiring 'em.

Justice, the Postoffice and the Interior aren't factors.

The Interior and Commerce divisions will be after the war, when readjustments start, but, as yet, they don't signify.

New Department Possible

There probably will be some sort of a post-war readjustment department, too, later—a department of which Owen D. Young, today's chairman of the General Electric Company, promises to be the head, as secretary of transportation. That's assuming, to be sure, that the current political authority is still in power then. It's reckoning on it as a potent influence among peacetime influences. It's slated to co-ordinate railroading, motor transport and aviation.

The army and navy are liable to be defensively compacted together, but transportation apparently is due to be separately calculated with.

In the meantime, and immediately, New Deal leaders are demanding a clean sweep of the Democratic national committee.

Flynn May Go

Differing entirely from the Wallace verdict, Democratic sentiment, in general, demands a wholesale cleaning out of Chairman Joe Flynn and associates, and a completely new set-up.

They want younger men, the rising generation urges.

There isn't any dispute on the war issue.

There IS one on economics.

They mix, somewhat.

It's interesting to note that Senator George W. Norris, beaten for congressional re-election, was suggested for the federal supreme bench. He's 81. Nobody, at his age, ever was appointed to it. He's a left-over, from a past generation.

But wasn't it, maybe, a better generation than this one?

Senator Norris's feelings are hurt by his defeat at the polls.

You don't have to agree with him entirely, to sympathize with him.

His defeat is personal, not alone political—and after so many years on Capitol Hill!

He isn't exactly personally defeated, either.

He's defeated as a broad-based liberal of a lifetime's standing.

From the Pittsburgh Press

If any other demagog, looking for an easy ride to power, has been torturing with the idea that prohibition might prove a popular issue, let him first ponder the fate of Joshua Bryan Lee.

Not knowing all the cross-currents of Oklahoma politics, we can't estimate to what degree, if any, the self-righteous campaign to abolish liquor within the cruising range of military establishments contributed to Senator Lee's downfall. But it is sufficient to know that Josh thought he had a winning issue; he thought he had something that would get out the vote for him back home. And the ballot count has proved that Josh wasn't thinking straight.

The church was decorated in white chrysanthemums and Mrs. John Palmer sang "O Perfect Love," and "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. Richard W. Trevisan at the organ. Mrs. Trevisan also played the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was attired in a two-piece street length dress of pink crepe with a matching applique on the jacket and a gathered skirt. She wore brown accessories and carried a Colonial bouquet. Her maid of honor wore a light blue costume with black accessories and carried a Colonial nosegay.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's mother for members of the immediate families. After which Mr. and Mrs. Fulk left for a wedding trip to Eastern cities.

Demonstration Agent Speaks on Nutrition To LaVale Club

Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, addressed the LaVale Mothers' Club on "Nutrition and School Lunches," at the meeting of the club yesterday afternoon in the school. She placed special emphasis not only on feeding the child well but making mealtime pleasant.

She illustrated her talk with charts and distributed booklets on the subject. Miss Bean gave a number of ideas for sandwiches and menus for hot lunches.

Members of the club decided to present the suggestion that the annual LaVale Parent-Teacher Association party be given this year with the object of building a kitchen in the school in order to serve hot lunches this winter. The suggestion will be presented at the meeting November 19.

Approximately twenty members attended the meeting.

Penn Avenue Will Present Program This Afternoon

Six Grade Students Will Give Play and Sing American Songs

Visitors day at Pennsylvania avenue school, marking the observance of National Education Week, will be featured with a special program and play to be given at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon by the pupils of the sixth grades.

The play, "And the Stars Heard," is based on the theme that the songs the American people have been singing for the past fifty years are the strongest bonds holding the people together. This is especially brought out by Charles Lattimer playing the part of an English refugee lad. Eunice Brown and Marshall Brinkman will portray American parents.

A chorus of thirty-five children will sing a group of songs including, "America," "America the Beautiful," the "National Anthem," "Old Folks at Home," "Old Kentucky Home," "Cowboy Song," and "Merry Life."

After the flag salute, Rebecca LeFev will give the invocation and Nadine Atkinson will read the Scripture. Patriotic numbers will be given in commemoration of Armistice day; and a group of twenty children will give "America's Welcome," by Henry VanDyke.

Miss Margaret Blake, Mrs. Hannah Allamong, Miss Elizabeth Flake, Mrs. Elizabeth Lakin and Miss Rebecca Stottler are in charge of the program.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB followed her to this school (now in Sudbury, Mass.) one day and gave John Roulstone inspiration for the little poem known as "Mary Had a Little Lamb," dear to the hearts of children and those who love them. Mary was Mary Sawyer and on the day the lamb trotted into history Roulstone chanced to visit the school. Near this school is a boulder which bears the following inscription: "In Honor of the Children's Classic—Mary Had a Little Lamb." This building incorporates the original Redstone school house, scene of the poem, which stood in the second school district of Sterling, Mass. It was in use from 1795 to 1836 and was removed to this spot for its preservation by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, January, 1927. This school house is again used regularly for classes.

South American Senoritas Are Helping the Good Neighbor Idea

Globe-trotting Secretary: Ruth Woodsmall

By ADELAIDE KERR

South American women are likely to play a telling role in strengthening the Good Neighbor Policy and in building world peace, says an observant North American globe trotter, just returned from a trip "down south."

She is Miss Ruth Woodsmall, general secretary of the World Y. W. C. A., who has just completed a 17,000-mile air tour which took her into every South American country and brought her into contact with the leading women and their work. "Many more South American are taking part in social work—child welfare, education, problems of young business girls, care of orphans," she says. "So they are working more closely together than ever before. This makes for unity at home in South America and that means strengthening the ties in the western hemisphere."

"Also, South American women have a strong and precious European heritage which gives them an understanding of world problems. This, coupled with the advance which they are making in education, should help them play a telling role in building world peace."

Miss Woodsmall's observation of South American social work touched some of the leading women of the continent. She visited two large projects headed by Senora Darcy Vargas, wife of the President of Brazil—one a "village for girls," where 500 underprivileged girls are housed and educated, another a home for newboys.

"Senora Vargas has real leadership over them," Miss Woodsmall says. "She visits them regularly—and hers are no brass hat visits. She goes in unannounced and the boys flock around."

"Her daughter, Mme. Armando Pixoto, wife of the governor of the State of Rio de Janeiro, directs a school which teaches women sewing and other means of livelihood. And Mme. Manuel Prado, wife of Peru's president, backs a school of social work and is active in the Red Cross. Her influence is somewhat like Mrs. Roosevelt's—she inspires women to participate in the national life."

The globe-trotting general secretary reports a growing interest among women in defense work and courses. Also, she notes a number of interesting changes in South American women.

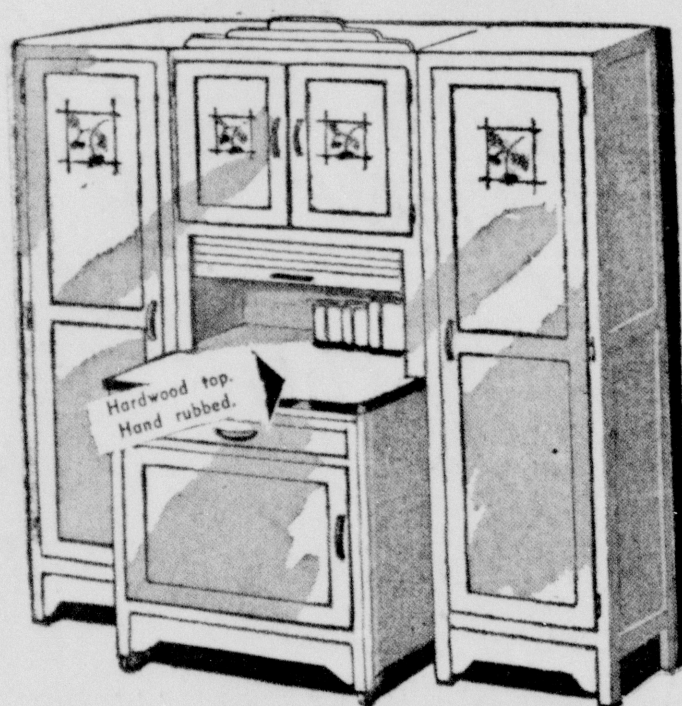

"There is a great development of the middle class," she says. "More women are attending universities. Fewer are marrying at such an early age. More are entering business, life professions and government service. In Montevideo there is a Feminine Radio Corporation, run entirely by women. In Rio de Janeiro there is a woman city engineer."

"Girls are asking for more courses in the Y. W. C. A.—courses in English, stenography, typing, etc. They don't need any courses in charm though. They have plenty of that, as well as grace and good looks."

Child Can Learn To Handle Money Wisely, Usefully

Financial Responsibility Can Be Taught through Allowances

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Every child should learn early to handle money wisely. Some children with normal opportunities to earn money are able to derive good training to this end. However, not all children who earn money early learn to use this money wisely. In fact, some use it very foolishly, if they have not had proper guidance.

At what age should an allowance begin? No one can safely name the age for all. The proper age for any particular child to begin an allowance will depend on the earlier training and experience of this child. Even at the age of 12, the allowance for the week, spends it all on that day, is not ready for so much responsibility. Yet another child might be ready as early as 7 or 8.

First Steps
As soon as your child begins to spend a cent, nickel or dime, announce to him he will receive a nickel, say, on Monday, but no more for that week. Relatives need to be won to cooperate. As soon as this program rigidly, stick to this nickel of this week till he gets the nickel of next week, in order to buy a cherished object for a dime, he has made the first big step in learning to handle money and use an allowance.

After he enters school, he may have certain regular expenditures for bus fare or lunch. When you believe he is ready to begin an allowance, sit down with the child and write down with him his regular necessary expenditures for a week. Have him check with you on these a few weeks later. Finally give him, say on Monday, an amount equal to the total of these items for the week and add to that a small amount, five or 10 cents, to do with as he likes. Naturally, this free item will be gradually increased as he grows older. Unfortunately, many parents think of such free money only as an allowance.

Though you will be glad to go over his accounts with him at the end of the week, you will not regret this lest he be tempted to deceive in his report. He must know he will get no more than this definite allowance during the week, unless some new, unforeseen need for money arises.

To work well, his allowance must not be supplemented by gifts or reduced by the use of any of it for penalties.

The first week of the allowance is most important. Do your utmost to help him succeed at it. Some be-

Solving Parent Problems
Q. A girl who graduated from high school with good grades says she has just lost her father who left her $1000. She says she would like to learn to teach home economics but wonders if it would be wise to undertake a college course on this amount, in order to get the training.

A. She was advised to plan a regular college course, specializing in home economics; that by working some on the side, probably at college, and being very economical, she could make the money last; that the cost might be relatively low in a state teacher's college, state college or state university; that in some colleges or universities the tuition is less for home economic students than those in some other fields; that, moreover, she should talk her problem over with her local high school principal.

College To Give Single Day Off For Christmas

Blue Ridge Asks Other Colleges To Help U. S. Soldiers

NEW WINDSOR, Md., Nov. 12 (AP)—In a move which college officials declared was designed to relieve an impending transportation crisis over the holidays, Blue Ridge College today announced the curtailment of its annual Christmas vacation to a single day.

Dean M. S. Reifsnider, in a statement to parents of students, called on other colleges throughout the nation to take similar action "to allow more soldiers and sailors to go home for the holidays."

Following a request from federal transportation agencies, the college had previously extended its Christmas to a full month, running from Dec. 15 to Jan. 15, but Reifsnider said Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox had opposed that action.

Long Holiday Opposed
In an announcement to the student body, college officials said Secretary Knox had declared "that extended Christmas holiday would delay by a month the completion of studies by students badly needed in the armed forces or defense work."

"He points out that if the transportation problem is so great as to call for the drastic action of extending Christmas holidays, the even greater problem of speeding up the education of men and women students needed for the War effort could be solved by the more drastic action of eliminating Christmas holidays entirely."

"He further points out that to delay the work of one million students for one month would mean the gift of millions of study hours to our enemies."

Accept Knox's Advice
College authorities said Knox's appeal was "so logical and so appealing to patriotism" that it was according to the suggestion.

"In totalitarian countries," the announcement continued, "Hitler and other dictators would order the holiday curtailed. In a democracy, we are glad to follow the suggestions of our leaders. Free men willingly sacrifice liberties that freedom may live."

"Because of the change, officials said, it will be possible to start the second semester on Jan. 31, and to advance commencement to mid-May. The Thanksgiving holiday had previously been curtailed to a single day."

Married Nurses May Sign Up for Reserved Army Nursing Corps

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Married nurses, up to the age of forty, can now enroll in the first reserve of the Red Cross Nursing Service for assignment to the army nursing corps, it is announced.

The War department, in relaxing its restrictions on married nurses specified that the applicants must have no dependent children who can not be cared for adequately off the post; that they have to sign up for the duration, plus the required six months thereafter; that they not be assigned to the same service commands as their husbands, if the husbands are in the armed forces.

Under the new ruling, the Red Cross Nursing Service announced some 15,000 married nurses already enrolled in their second reserve, will be eligible for the army nursing corps.

HERE ARE THE THINGS SERVICE MEN WANT

One you may never have thought of . .

• You can't send service men even the small personal gifts you ordinarily gave. And bigger things take up too much space; soldiers and sailors have to "travel light." But their letters ask the "folks back home" for their cigarettes, home-made cake, pen and pencil with clips; wallers with insignia. And it's amazing how many ask for Noxzema. Here's why:

Men in the service are out in all kinds of weather. They get windburned, sunburned, chafed. Feet get sore, hands chapped; shaving in cold water becomes a major problem. They want Noxzema because this one jar, that takes so little space, brings such quick relief these 5 ways:

1. SHAVING IRRITATION. Noxzema softens rough beard, helps prevent sensitive skin, keeps shaving smooth with cool water. It's a great beard shave, too, can be used without shaver.

2. TINDERS, BRUISING, FURT. A little Noxzema rubbed on a day's sports brings away the redness, it's a great skin soother.

3. PAINFUL CHAFING. Rough work clothes often bring on chafed spots; Noxzema gives quick, soothing relief, helps promote quicker healing.

4. SUNBURN AND WINDBURN. Noxzema cools, soothes, relieves badly sunburned and windburned skin.

5. CHAPPED HANDS, FACE, LIPS. Noxzema is medicated; it helps heal the tiny cuts in rough, chapped skin.

Give some man in the service a treat. Be a thank you for Get a jar of Noxzema at any drug store and include it in your next package.

SPECIAL OFFER! For a limited time, you can get the big 75¢ jar of Noxzema for only 49¢ (plus tax). Don't miss this offer!

Lonaconing Honor Roll Unveiled at Armistice Program

Parade through Principal Streets Precedes Dedic- ation Ceremony

LONACONING, Nov. 12—Parents, sweethearts, brothers, sisters and friends of the men and women in the service from Lonaconing and vicinity joined in the singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" as the honor roll was unveiled at the dedication ceremony Wednesday afternoon in the yard of the Presbyterian church, Main street, Lonaconing.

Immediately following "The New Colonial March," played by the Lonaconing City band to open the program, Corp. Edward Mooney of Camp Pickett, Va., a Lonaconing soldier, unveiled the board as the audience sang the patriotic song.

Chief Judge D. Lindsey Sloan, introduced by George Elchhorn, master of ceremonies, voiced in a short address, "we at home must do our utmost, the winning of the war will depend on us just as much as the boys at the front. It is our war, our country is in danger, we are not big and powerful enough to wish for victory and get it.

"This is a war of conquest, we must conquer to win. We must realize that we are in danger. For the preservation of our country we must do our utmost now if we want it to remain a government of the people, by the people and for the people, so that we will not perish from this earth."

Father Edward Fontaine of the St. Mary's Catholic church, Lonaconing, offered the invocation. The Presbyterian church choir sang "God Of Our Fathers," and The Rev. Thomas R. Dixon, Jr., of the Presbyterian church, Lonaconing, read the scripture.

"The National Emblem," a march, was played by the Lonaconing City Band before the address of Chief Judge Sloan. "Forward Through the Ages," an anthem, was sung by the Presbyterian church choir. Then the audience sang "The Star Spangled Banner." The Rev. Lewis F. Ransom of the Methodist church, Lonaconing, gave benediction.

A parade marched on Jackson street and Main street to the site of the honor roll prior to the dedication. Organizations that participated were the Kelly Mansfield Post No. 52, Piedmont American Legion, James P. Love Post No. 92, Lonaconing American Legion, Lonaconing City Band, Goodwill Volunteer Fire Company No. 1, Lonaconing, The Maryland Minute Men, Company 851, Lonaconing, and the Lonaconing Girl Scout Troop.

Mayor John H. Evans, Raymond Elchhorn, John Elchhorn, Joseph Moran, Oswald Baumann, William Marshall and Wesley Duckworth composed the committee who planned the erection of the honor roll.

The honor roll, which is bordered in red, white and blue and which is placed beside the soldier's monument, has inscribed on the top, the sixteenth verse from chapter twenty-five of the first book of Samuel, "They were a wall unto us, both by night and day." At the bottom is written, "The Lord bless them and keep them."

Billy De Beck Dies in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—William Morgan "Billy" De Beck, 52, cartoonist who created "Barney Google" and many other comic strip characters, died yesterday after a long illness. His wife was at the bedside.

De Beck began his famous comic strip, in which many contemporary slang phrases were born, in 1919 when he joined King Features in New York.

The strip introduced the immortal "Spark-Plug," a quint-eyed race horse which in cash earnings outran Cavalade, Gallant Fox, War Admiral, Sea Biscuit and many other turf stars.

Added to these characters were the moonshining mountaineer, "Snuffy Smith," his wife, "Lowdie," and a group of comical hill billies. De Beck, one of the speediest of modern cartoonists, also drew "Bunky," a monstrous-nosed infant who matched wits against the notorious viper, "Fagan."

The cartoonist was credited with introducing and popularizing such phrases as "heebee-jeebies," "jeepers creepers," "horse feathers" and "sweet mama."

Born in Chicago, De Beck began his art career when in high school.

Surviving is his widow, the former Mary Louise Dunne, whom he married in 1927. They had no children. De Beck maintained homes here and in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The tarantula killer is a large and conspicuous wasp, more than two inches long, common in the southwest United States and in Central America, which preys especially on tarantulas.

Chairman of War Production Board Addresses National Group

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—Advertising is an "essential part of our communications system," a system which the government has "no remotest desire" to destroy, Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board says.

Nelson said the future does not hold a bright picture for the individual businessman, but "the picture is not wholly black either."

At a dinner meeting of the Association of National Advertisers, he said:

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
Paul L. Mudge, vs. Jessie M. Mudge, No. 16906 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County.
The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce a Vinculo Matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant. The bill states that the parties were married on February 2nd, 1915, in Romney, West Va., and that two children were born namely: Jo Ann, born January 29th, 1916, and Thomas E., born September 19th, 1918. The said Thomas E. Mudge resides with the Plaintiff and Jo Ann Mudge, resides with the defendant.

The bill further states that the defendant deserted and abandoned the plaintiff on or about the 19th day of August, 1940, and that such desertion and abandonment has been continuous and uninterrupted for more than eighteen months, and is deliberate and final and without hope of reconciliation. The plaintiff asks for the custody of Thomas E. Mudge, the minor child of said marriage. The Plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland, and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, her last whereabouts being Charlotte, North Carolina.
IT IS THEREUPON, this 21st day of October, 1942, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County in equity, ordered that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be published in some newspaper, published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of November, 1942, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and purpose of this suit and warning her to be and appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 8th day of December, 1942, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

no scope is going to be left for the free exercise of his talents; I see no reason to assume that the field is going to tighten up so much that advertising will not still have an important job to do in the distribution of goods.

"For advertising, I must repeat, is an essential part of our communications system. We dare not destroy or cripple that communications system in wartime, and we have no remotest desire to do so."

Sees Hard Road Ahead

The WPB chief prefaced his address with a warning against a too optimistic view of war developments. "What is happening in Africa is only a beginning, not an end," he cautioned. "The German military organization is immensely powerful; it has lost heavily in Russia, but it will still take a lot of licking."

"And on the other side of the world, we have only made the barest beginning of the reconquest of the immense and wealthy territories seized by Japan."

"The American economy is vital enough and flexible enough to crush the enemy without itself breaking down in the process," Nelson said.

"It has a greater adaptability than our enemies dreamed; greater, I suppose, than we ourselves suspected."

The peacetime distributive and marketing machinery has found a vital role in the war economy, the WPB chairman said, albeit a role "vastly different" from its peacetime one. This machinery can help cushion the conversion to an all-out war effort, he added, and through it "our basic structure can be preserved and kept sound for the years of peace and prosperity which lie ahead."

Advertising Role Changes

"While in ordinary times it is advertising which provides the urge for mass production, today it is the war itself which provides that urge," he continued. "Advertising has nothing to do with it, and the vital role which it ordinarily fills is denied to it for the duration of the emergency."

The civilian economy must be kept sound, Nelson said, since a wobbly economy could not carry a huge war program "any more than a half-starved man can do a heavy day's labor." Advertising can contribute to maintenance of the civilian war economy in at least four ways, Nelson said. He listed them:

"First, where a manufacturer continues to have goods to sell to the civilian market, advertising has the same role it always had—to help him sell them.

"Second, the manufacturer who is now selling his goods to the government instead of to the civilian may still have a very proper need for advertising. He can, very usefully, for instance, tell his former customers how to use and conserve and service the goods which he has previously sold them.

"Those goods in service may very well constitute the country's sole remaining stock of such articles—a stock which will have to do until the war ends. It is certainly right for the manufacturer to use advertising to help make that stock last."

"Then, there are companies which, as far as the consuming public is concerned, are virtually out of business—either actually, or through conversion to war production. Where such a company expects to return to the civilian market after the war, it has a perfect right to use advertising to preserve its name and its good-will. The government fully recognizes the propriety of reasonable expenditures for advertising to preserve the value of those assets."

Advertising Aids War Effort
"Lastly, advertising has a very great usefulness as a means by which a company can participate directly in the war effort. Some extremely valuable work has been done by the national advertisers, the great advertising agencies, and the various media in supporting such things as the salvage drive, for example.

"I would like to pay my tribute right now to the innumerable organizations and individuals which have contributed time, money and skill to such campaigns. They have been a direct and genuine help toward winning the war—and I'm sure that's all the thanks any patriotic American wants in these days."

Nelson assured his hearers that whatever temporary restrictions and limitations might have to be laid on the free enterprise system in the coming year would not be "capricious."

The government was not making changes, he said, just for the sake of changes, or using the war "to cloak a move for social or economic reform."

"The government recognizes advertising as a legitimate tool of business and believes it has a useful role in our war effort," he summarized. "The various restrictions which affect business and hence affect advertising arise from the necessities of the war situation and from nothing else.

"We ask you to recognize in turn, that you can't hope to have business as usual during this war, and that until peace comes, the field in which you can operate will be rather sharply restricted—but the field will continue to be there, and it won't be restricted any more than is absolutely necessary."

Entire Conception of Tuberculosis Has Undergone Change, Dr. Clendening Says

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
The entire conception of tuberculosis has changed, and it has done so, not only during my lifetime, but really since I graduated from medical college and started in practice.

One of the early ideas was that it is hereditary. They had passed into limbo before my time. We knew it was infectious, but we had no realization of how frequently it is transmitted from human being to human being.

The reason the older medical authorities thought it was hereditary was because it so often occurred in several members of a single family. Now we know the reason for this is that one person in a family will give it to the others. Infection occurs from adults to children.

We firmly believed in my student days that the diagnosis could be made by listening to the chest with a stethoscope if only you conducted the examination carefully enough. Now we know that at least half the cases are missed this way, no matter how expert the doctor is with his stethoscope, and that the x-ray is really the final test for diagnosis. The stethoscope is used merely to determine the degree of activity of a case.

It used to be considered that the final and determining test for the diagnosis was finding the germs in the sputum. Now we know that if they are found it is a late case.

Under treatment it was taught like gospel forty years ago that the patient could get well in his own home. Only a few arrangements had to be made to give him fresh air and the treatment would be just as successful at home as anywhere. Now the conviction is established that wherever possible the patient with tuberculosis should be placed in an institution, primarily in order to protect the other people in the home.

All that was needed for cure was supposed forty years ago to be rest, fresh air and plenty of nourishing food. It is known now that it is almost impossible to cure a case of tuberculosis without surgical treatment, such as collapse of the lung. It certainly is true of what is known as the open case—one with a cavity.

Climate, the layman's hope and idea of the be-all of tuberculosis treatment, was regarded as very doubtfully beneficial then, and the doctrine still holds.

We still need rest, fresh air and good food although we do not stuff tuberculosis patients with extra meals nowadays as much as we used to. Climate then, as now, is assessed to add about a one per cent advantage to any cure.

These changes in viewpoint have certainly proved themselves in practice and have done much to help the improved results. They are often hard for the afflicted one to face, but they are certainly realistic.

Questions and Answers

Q. J. M.:—I have been rejected by the army because of "albuminuria, persistent, cause undetermined." I feel good and am in perfect health, 28 years old. What should I do about this condition?

Answer: I have been a number of these cases of albuminuria in otherwise healthy young men. I used to pick them up in life insurance examinations. I followed as many as I could for a number of years and they never developed any serious kidney trouble. It is thought to be orthostatic—present only when standing and walking. It certainly does not mean kidney disease. Sometimes there is tuberculosis or anemia. It is worth having a doctor examine you on that account.

Wisdom Is Needed In Choosing Gifts For Service Men

Since early September this column has urged friends of men in the armed forces to be prompt about mailing Christmas gifts to men overseas. Although the deadline has passed, there is nothing to prevent us from keeping in mind the simple rules that govern the sending of packaged gifts to our boys in service.

The army and navy suggests a certain number of don'ts that it's well to remember. Cakes and cookies become stale and reduce to crumbs on the long voyages. Please don't send them. The same is true of fruit, which becomes spoiled. Please don't think you're doing something cute if you slip in a tiny bottle of the lad's favorite cordial or brandy. That won't do at all.

Bear Climate in Mind

Bear in mind the climate of the country to which he is being sent. If he's going to the tropics, don't send wool-lined slippers or woolen socks or warm underwear. These are welcome in Alaska and Iceland, but are plain nuisances in the tropics.

The boys want things they can really use. A survey just conducted among service men suggests that pipes, tobacco, cigarettes, books, wa-

THE MINOR HAS MAJOR PLANS

Ginger Rogers, temporarily disguised as a twelve-year-old for purposes of plot in Paramount's "The Major and the Minor," which opens today at the Strand theater, moves in on "Major" Milland's tepid romance with Rita Johnson. Rita doesn't know why she dislikes the little girl—but it isn't long before she finds out. The comedy, one of the funniest ever filmed, also features Robert Benchley, Diana Lynn and Ginger's own mother, Lela Rogers.

erproof, shockproof wrist-watches, pen and pencil sets, and stationery are always welcome. So are wind-proof cigarette lighters.

Small portable radios once highly recommended, are bulky to carry around on maneuvers, and there are no facilities for charging dead batteries. When you send cigarettes be sure to leave out the matches.

Army Governs Size

The army governs the maximum size of presents to be sent overseas. Nothing weighing over eleven pounds or measuring more than eighteen inches across will be sent. As already stated, food is debarred. Snapshots of home, family, sweetheart, neighbors and the family dog are tremendously appreciated and have the merit of being inexpensive.

Letters are always appreciated. Be sure to write often and don't

Roane School Bus Drivers Raise Request Is Approved

SPENCER, W. Va., Nov. 11 (AP)—School Superintendent L. D. Moore forwarded a request for a $15 a month increase in pay for Roane county school bus drivers to the state board of school finance after members of the county board voiced their approval.

The drivers asked that monthly salaries be stepped up from $85 to $100 retroactive to the opening of the present school term.

Boris Karloff Has Boogie Man Role Again

Filmdom has a new word, for a new sensation. The word is "chillarity," meaning chills and laughter, and it refers to the net effect upon motion picture audiences of Boris Karloff's latest film, "The Boogie Man Will Get You."

"The Boogie Man Will Get You" stars Karloff and Peter Lorre at the Embassy theater. A horror film designed for laughter, the comedy brings to the screen the "Arsenic and Old Lace" technique which kept Karloff on Broadway for two years. Menace and murder and merriest march hand in hand in "The Boogie Man Will Get You."

Lew Landers directed the new comedy, whose supporting cast includes grammar-slapping "Slapstick" Maxie Rosenbloom, Larry Parks and Jeff Donnell. Miss Donnell is a virtual newcomer to the screen, a pert youngster who made her screen debut in Columbia's delightful "My Sister Eileen." In "The Boogie Man Will Get You," she proves again that Columbia was lucky in finding her; Miss Donnell's definitely headed for stardom.

Garden Western Has Two Stars

Charles Starrett and Russell Hayden, both of whom have starred in many westerns, are teamed in "Lawless Plainsmen," opening today at the Garden.

The co-feature at the Garden is "The Man Who Returned to Life," with John Howard, Lucile Fairbanks, Ruth Ford and Marcella Martin.

"Moon and Sixpence" Tells Strange Story

To David L. Loew and Albert Lewin belongs a rousing cheer from moviegoers everywhere for their brilliant film translation of a great and famous book—Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence." Their film production of this exciting yarn opened last night at the Maryland theater through United Artists and was rated as extremely welcome by a large and enthusiastic audience.

Not one line of this hardy classic has been deleted or softened to spare the feelings of screen audiences. The script, which blends stark realism with vivid drama and romance, is liberally salted with dialogue of the sort that may cause the ladies to rise and shake their fists; but they are not likely to ignore it.

The story deals with the adventures of a London stockbroker, Charles Strickland, who abandons his respectable wife and family for a fling at Paris and the Latin Quarter, obeying an irresistible urge to paint.

Playing Kid Role Proves Snap Job

Never in her entire movie career did Ginger Rogers get up so late each morning before going to work in a picture as she did during filming of her newest and best picture, Paramount's smash hit comedy, "The Major and the Minor," which offers today at the Strand.

Ginger had been accustomed to arriving at a studio two hours before work started on the set, which means she was on hand at 7 a. m., and that, in turn, means that she had to arise at 4 a. m. But day after day during production of "The Major and the Minor" Ginger lay in bed until 7:30 a. m., and got to work at 8:30, only a half hour before doing scenes with Ray Milland, her co-star.

The reason for the star's hour-and-a-half extra sleep was due to the fact that for the greater part of the picture she wears no makeup. Nor does she boast a lovely, fussed-over coiffure. Throughout most of the film Ginger poses as a twelve-year-old school girl, necessitating an absence of all make-up save a little lip rouge. She wears her hair sometimes in pigtails, sometimes merely combed out. With no fancy coiffures and no make-up to don, Ginger benefited by almost two hours of leisure.

Vermont comes from two French words—verd and mont—meaning green mountains. The name is said to have been bestowed by Samuel de Champlain.

Anglo-American Squeeze Play Is Worrying Hitler

Fuehrer's "Pincer" Move Believed Definitely at an End

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Mounting evidence that the developing Anglo-American squeeze play in Africa has already shattered both prongs of Hitler's most ambitious "pincer" attack of the war comes from many sources even before full fruits of Allied strategy can be assessed.

Certainly the southern jaw of the Axis vise is wrecked. Nothing remains of Rommel's African corps in Egypt except its casualties in men and machines. The Suez canal and the Eastern Mediterranean are again secure.

In Russia, the northern jaw of that made-in-Berlin device designed to throttle the Soviets into submission and to isolate and immobilize Turkey is no less stalled. German retreat before an on-rushing Russian winter, perhaps soon to be fanged with a massive Soviet offensive, seems all but inevitable. Moscow and Ankara reports indicate it is already in the making.

Nazi Air Power Weaker
Significant abatement of the weight and fury of Nazi air attack on Stalingrad and in the Caucasus is noted by the Russians. That German air power is winging west and south to meet the rising Allied threat across the Mediterranean is the logical explanation. It is the first definite symptom of relaxation of enemy pressure on Russia due to the allied offensive in Africa.

Turkish observation posts cap that with otherwise unconfirmed but plausible reports that Nazi troops from Russia also are being shuttled westward into the Balkans to man a new potential Axis defense front in the south that reaches from the Pyrenees to the Dardanelles, from Spain to Turkey. Nor can Hitler be certain at what moment Turkey might forsake her neutrality to join the tightening Allied Mediterranean cordon.

"Demoralization" Nearer
The hour of enemy "demoralization" to invite new Allied attacks which Prime Minister Churchill foresees is not yet arrived. The first crux of the American-steered offensive in the Mediterranean theater is brewing in Tunisia with domination of the central Mediterranean narrows as its prime objective.

First air blows of that clash have been exchanged in the little French protectorate. Just how near the American or Anglo-American armored columns hastening eastward may be to complete Allied investment of French African outposts is not clear. The odds seem heavily in Allied favor.

Turkish accounts of heavy Nazi troop movements from Russia to the Balkans are of special interest. If true, they indicate Hitler's apprehension over the security of the

Kaiser Launches Big Freighter in Under Five Days

Ship Builder Breaks All Records for Rapid Construction

RICHMOND, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP)—The 10,500-ton freighter Robert E. Perry, which grew from keel to completion in four days, fifteen and one-half hours, slipped from the Henry J. Kaiser ways today to break all records for speed in merchant ship building.

It is expected to be delivered, fully outfitted, to the Maritime Commission "before next Monday"—still another and even more significant mark.

Here is its schedule: Keel-laying—12:01 a. m. last Sunday; launching—3:30 p. m. today; anticipated time from keel-laying to delivery—eight days or less.

The previous record for a smaller ship was ten days eleven hours and fifty-five minutes from keel-laying to launching, and an additional Greek-Balkan sector of his southern front as well as over its French or Italian sectors.

His concern is justified. His most vital war assets, the oil to keep his planes, tanks and war industries going, is in the Balkans. Could allied major strategists freely pick the place at which they could strike the most deadly blows at the Axis, without question the Rumanian oil flow would take first place in their calculations.

Jeffers Deplores Loose Talk about Rubber Shortage

Says Untrue Statements Create His Hardest Problem

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—William M. Jeffers, the nation's rubber chief, said today "loose and careless talk" was the biggest problem he had in driving home the need for conserving rubber.

Such talk Jeffers said in an address prepared for delivery before the Association of National Advertisers, "sometimes results in loose and careless publication," and confused people.

"A spokesman, perhaps a government spokesman," Jeffers explained, "talks carelessly to a reporter. The result of a study headlined: 'Rubber Problem Licked, or 'Tires For All'.

People Deceived
"Some of the people, accepting these statements at their face value and not troubling to read the decided to try them on one hull and see what would happen."

Hull in Sections
The hull of the Robert E. Perry had been constructed in large sections, even before the keel-laying, yard officials said, and the ship was ninety-one per cent complete at its launching.

There was no slackening of work on other projects during the record-breaking construction—the per day average erection of steel throughout the yards was larger than last month.

tails, concluded that mileage regulations are not necessary, and are an infringement of their rights."

Jeffers contended that every driver would like to believe there is some short cut to rubber conservation other than rationing and added: "Unfortunately there isn't."

The facts are, Jeffers said, that the Japanese cut off ninety per cent of our supplies and that as a result the United States is compressing into two years the building of a tremendous synthetic rubber industry which ordinarily would take a dozen years to build. And, he said, the nation must bridge the two-year gap—until synthetics are rolling—through conservation. That, he indicated, is the reason the present thirty-five mile an hour speed limit and gasoline rationing that is to be made nation-wide on Dec. 1.

"The greatest reserve supply of rubber we have in this country is in the millions tons of rubber in the tires of our passenger cars and trucks," Jeffers said. "We must stretch that million tons as far as it will possibly go—and maybe a little bit farther."

Selling the American people on such conservation, Jeffers told the advertising men, was his problem.

"With your help we can give them that picture," the rubber chief said. "If you will think of the public reaction in its national sense each time you write or talk about rubber, there will be no confusion and if there is no confusion the American people will go along with the rubber conservation program 100 per cent."

To MEN 18 AND 19 WHO WANT

RIGHT now the U. S. Army offers you many opportunities to serve your country. Certainly one of the most thrilling, most exciting branches of all for a red-blooded American is our modern, streamlined Infantry.

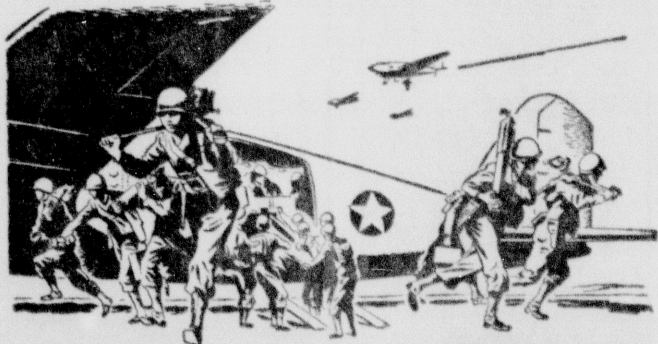

• For you can bet your boots that the Infantry will be there when the Nazi flag is torn down in Berlin. The Doughboys have always been in on the final victory since the dawn of history. And you'll certainly want to be there this time.

• Today's Infantry is a new, modernized combat unit. It includes more kinds of action than ever before. It gives you more kinds of adventure and training. Read about them carefully, for the Infantry is one of several branches of the Army which men of 18 and 19 may select today. Then talk to your nearest Recruiting Officer and get all the facts about the opportunities still open to you.

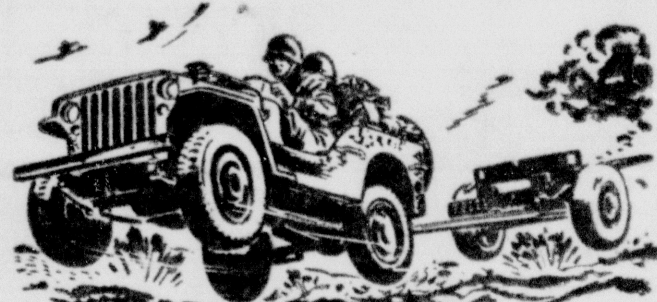

GANGWAY FOR THE INFANTRY

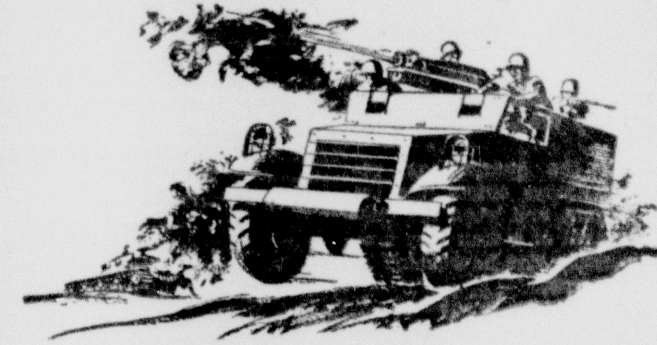

PARACHUTE TROOPS—Here they come, armed to the teeth. They float to earth by parachute from huge transport planes—daring men to do a vital job and do it well. They learn their business from the ground up and receive $50 a month in addition to their regular pay.

AIR-BORNE INFANTRY—Today's Infantry takes to the skies in more ways than one. Whole divisions of Air-borne Infantry, completely equipped with guns, cannon, ammunition and "jeeps," fly to battle in great transport planes, or soar swiftly and silently to earth in gliders to take the enemy by surprise.

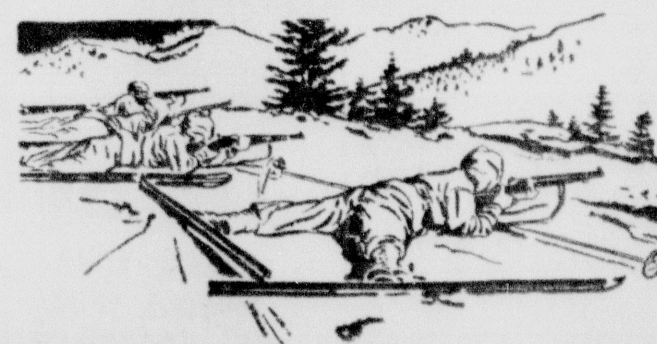

HEAVY MOBILE FIRE-POWER—No Infantryman in the world has more deadly, more powerful guns to use. The new 37 mm. jeep-towed field gun has terrific fire-power. Jeeps, including amphibians, also mount 30 and 50 calibre machine guns, making them one of the most versatile battle cars of all time.

TANK BUSTERS—The Tank Destroyer Force of the Infantry is a new and powerful mechanized fighting unit. Its "tank busters" bristle with armor-piercing cannon and machine guns. They're regular 60-mile-an-hour fortresses on the move. The most effective weapons of their kind in modern warfare.

RIFLEMEN—No other Army on the globe equips its Infantrymen with a more efficient, more deadly hand weapon than the new Garand semi-automatic rifle. Superior in accuracy, in fire-power, in firing speed, this "one-man-gang-gun" gives our Doughboys the edge over any opponent.

MOUNTAIN TROOPS—The Infantry's Mountain Troops range high over lofty peaks, handling themselves as skilled mountaineers. Ski patrols, snowshoe patrols, pack units with mules and pack horses, and those who scale sheer mountainsides summer and winter, are part of the Infantry today.

MACHINE GUNNERS—Some of our Infantrymen command the barking muzzles of fast-firing, straight-shooting machine guns. Others are equipped with the newest, most modern long-range, rapid-fire weapons, automatic rifles, mortars, pistols, grenades, light and heavy anti-tank guns.

COMMUNICATIONS—In an army that moves like lightning, communications are vital. Infantrymen operate radio receivers and transmitters, "Walky-Talkie" one-man radio stations, telephone and telegraph equipment to guide movements of their own men and keep in touch with every other armed force in action.

MOTORIZED UNITS—In modern battle, Infantrymen roar up to the front lines in huge Army trucks. Complete divisions, with guns, cannon and ammunition speed over roads. As always, the American Doughboy is trained to take care of himself on foot and lick the enemy in hand-to-hand combat.

AROUND THE WORLD—The U. S. Army has designed equipment and training for every known kind of climate and geography on earth. Our Infantryman is the best equipped in this war. For the snows of the Arctic or the heat of the Tropics, he has the clothes, equipment and training he needs to fight hard and win.

Notre Dame-Michigan Game Is Top Notcher

All-Important Game of Season For Wolverines

Sellout Crowd of 57,168 Fans To See Game in South Bend

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 12 (AP)—There seems to be one all-important game for every football team in the "Big Ten" this season.

For Michigan, it's against Notre Dame here Saturday. The teams will collide, after a lapse of thirty-three years, before an all-time record breaking crowd of 57,168—the fifth sellout since Notre Dame's stadium was built in 1930.

The renewal of gridiron relations between Michigan's Wolverines and the "Fighting Irish," broken off in 1910 due to an eligibility dispute, presents a perfect No. 1 attraction for both teams.

The contest is particularly attractive because Michigan introduced football to Notre Dame fifty-five years ago. The Wolverines are the only team in the "Big Ten" holding a margin of 8 to 1 victories over Notre Dame.

The game is the one the rival coaches would like to win, above all others, if a choice could be made. Coach Fritz Crisler of the Wolverines and his assistants are teaching the strategy that has been decided upon after careful observation of all previous Notre Dame games. Frank Leahy of the Irish and his aides are setting up a defense for the Wolverines' attack and planning their own assault to strike wherever Michigan reveals weakness.

Crisler hopes to devise defensive moves that will bottle up Notre Dame's superb passer, Angelo Bertelli.

Leahy's principal worry is the Wolverines' backfield of Don Lund, Bob Stenberg, Don Boor and Robert Wieser. Their combined talent presents an ever-dangerous threat.

Old Liners Ready For Virginia Game

Maryland Roofers Say Team Has Lived Up To Pre-Season Hopes

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 12 (AP)—Maryland's football team, which goes to Charlottesville, Va., tomorrow for the game Saturday with the University of Virginia Cavaliers, has played fully up to the form expected of it when the campaign began, in the opinion of Old Line partisans.

At the outset of the schedule, it was figured that Maryland would do well if it won six out of nine games and remarkably well if it should take seven. The Old Liners go to Charlottesville with five wins in seven starts, just about up to par.

After the Virginia game, the Old Liners have a contest with Washington and Lee at College Park as the season's finale.

Pre-season calculations gave Maryland the edge on foes other than Rutgers, Florida and Virginia, with which it was figured to have only an outside chance. Form held true in all cases to date.

Determined to take the Cavaliers and keep them from getting on even terms in the long series, the Old Liners are keen for the Virginia engagement and figure to pay up for the Duke defeat.

The Old Liners appeared hot in practice this week and will enter the game in good trim, mentally and physically.

Virginia can tie Maryland in the series by winning, the Old Liners now holding eight wins to seven for the Cavaliers. Two contests ended in draws.

Turner, McIntosh 2 New Officials Selected for Charles Town Fall Meet

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—Two new faces will grace the official roster of the Charles Town Jockey Club for the Fall meeting, which gets underway, Tuesday, Dec. 1.

John P. Turner, Jr., becomes the new paddock judge and will also serve as a patrol judge. Kenneth V. McIntosh takes over the duties of custodian of the jockey room.

Turner needs no introduction to horsemen in this section of the country. Son of John P. Turner, veteran racing official and race secretary at Laurel and Rockingham Park, the junior member of the family has served in various official capacities at all the Maryland mile tracks and half mile ovals and is returning to a position here at Charles Town that he formerly held when racing was legalized in the Mountaineer State back in 1933.

McIntosh, a newcomer to these parts, is by no means a stranger to the jockeys and horsemen. He is now completing a successful and popular tenure as custodian of the jockey room at Rockingham Park and has served in many capacities in jockey rooms all over the country.

Tommy Farmer
Key to Iowa's surprising upset of heavily-favored Wisconsin, Saturday, Nov. 7, was Tommy Farmer, senior quarterback of the Hawkeyes.

For two years Farmer has been a star on the Iowa eleven and this year he has continued his great work. His play in the Wisconsin game was his best yet and gains for him the "Star of the Week" honor.

Farmer tossed a twenty-three yard pass to End Bill Burkett for the game's only score. On two other occasions he pulled the Hawkeyes out of the hole with pass interceptions. In addition, he did the team's kicking.

Twenty-one years old, Farmer hails from Grand Rapids, Ia., where he was a three-point star in high school.

In the baseball season, Farmer plays second base on the varsity team.

LaSalle Closes Football Season At Keyser Today

Explorers Favored To Defeat Bob Kyle's Golden Tornado

LaSalle High's Explorers will be favored to close their 1942 football season with a victory over Bob Kyle's Keyser High Golden Tornado eleven when the teams clash this afternoon at Keyser, W. Va.

The Kylemen, who will ring down the curtain by meeting Ridgeley at Keyser next Friday, haven't scored a point in losing five straight games this year. The Tornado bowed 13-0 to Parsons, 45-0 to Allegany, 7-0 to Alumni, 34-0 to Romney and 60-0 to Moorefield.

Explorers Won Pair
The Explorers' record is two victories and four setbacks. The Blue and Gold lost 13-0 to Altoona Catholic, held Moorefield to a 12-7 score, blanked Ridgeley 41-0 and Alumni 6-0 and bowed 13-0 to Port Hill and 35-12 to Allegany.

Coach Kyle reported last night that injuries to key men have forced him to make at least two changes in the Keyser starting lineup.

At left end, Jack Fox will start in place of Sam Bright, out with an injury, while Jim Nadele, right halfback, is nursing a neck injury and will give way to Bob Barick or Doc Hines. Rounding out the Tornado backfield will be Dick Davy and Sam Oglesbee.

Two Other Games
Two other games are on tap in the district today. Ridgeley will entertain the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney and Romney high will oppose Berkeley Springs on the latter's gridiron.

A pair of Cumberland Valley Athletic League contests, with a local team figuring in each, feature tomorrow's slate. Allegany will be favored to turn back Martinsburg's Bulldogs at the Port Hill stadium and Port Hill's Sentinels should take over sole possession of first place by stopping Hagerstown at Hagerstown. Both games will be staged in the afternoon.

Navigation Will Race At Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—A. S. Bowman, of Culpeper, Va., who has always enjoyed singular success here will campaign only the useful plater Navigation during the Fall meeting of the Charles Town Jockey Club, starting Dec. 1.

Pressure of farming and the induction of his partner L. S. Colvin in the United States Army forced Bowman to curtail his thoroughbred activities for the duration.

Tip On Tippy

GARFIELD, N. J. (AP)—Tippy Larkin, New Jersey lightweight boxing champion and the NBA's second ranking contender for the world title, acquired his fistic nom de plume through a bit of alphabetic manipulation. He was born Tony Pelletieri. The "T" and "P" became Tippy, and he borrowed the surname from his brother, who preceded him as a prizefighter.

Dodgers May Beat Rickey to Punch, Marlin Declares

Two Players Resign in Space of Couple of Days

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—It begins to look like Branch Rickey had better start sending out some "aw, come on fellows; I was only kidding" messages to the Brooklyn Dodgers if he hopes to have a quorum of athletes on hand for the 1943 season.

Mr. Rickey is known to prefer little, rapid gents still on the light side of thirty for his ball clubs, and he has hinted that when he gets around to it there'll be some changes made in the Brooklyn roster. He may sign players for a dime, but he doesn't want them to play on it and there are some Dodgers who are close to that point now. Down to two nickels, anyway.

The Brooklyn players whose jobs are in danger have only to look up their birth records and take a squint at arches which have more fall than spring in them to identify themselves.

Two Resign
Within the space of a couple of days two players have announced they wouldn't be back next year. One of these, Hugh Casey, says he will enter the armed service, and as plump Hughie still is under thirty and might survive the Rickey purge it is logical to assume that he will join the service regardless of who was bossing the Dodgers, and more power to him.

The Dolph Camilli case is a little different. Camilli, still a whale of a ball player, nevertheless is at that point in his career where he'll soon be having to borrow time to play on. He's thirty-four, and recalling how Rickey had his doubts that he is one of the spry young fellows the new boss would keep.

Camilli doesn't like the semi-annual commuting from the West coast, which is understandable considering it's something of a migration when the Camilli clan moves, although many a guy would roll a peanut across the country with his nose and carry his family on his back to pick up $20,000.

Ex-Cardinals Need To Worry
It would seem that the Dodgers who really might look on the future with some alarm are the ex-Cardinals whom Rickey disposed of when he was Sam Breadon's head auctioneer.

These include Joe Medwick, Curt Davis, Mickey Owen, and Manager Leo Durocher himself. It is logical to assume that if they weren't good enough for Rickey when he was in St. Louis they aren't good enough for him now, figuring that he hopes to make the Brooklyn club as good as he made St. Louis.

Medwick would appear to be the gent perched on the cracked flagpole. The Cardinals received an estimated $100,000 and players in the deal sending Medwick and Davis to the Dodgers, but the general idea is that the financial return wasn't the only reason Rickey was glad to part with the outfielder. He just didn't fit into the Cardinal organization.

Naturally the question of replacements always enters into the sale of players, and when the Cardinals disposed of a man they usually were pretty sure he wouldn't be missed too much.

Musial Was Ready
When they let Davis go, they were chest high in promising pitching prospects. When Owen was turned loose, the very capable Walker Cooper was coming up. When they sold Don Padgett to Brooklyn last winter, they had Stan Musial ready. They got fooled a little on Ray Sanders, whom they had counted on to replace Mize, but it worked out all right as Johnny Hopp and his talented feet fitted into the Card lineup even better than Mize.

Anyway, it will be interesting to see just who goes where and how soon when Rickey starts chopping at the dead wood. But he'd better not talk too much about breaking up the team or the team will beat him to it. Nobody's going to break up Dolph Camilli, by gum. They can't fire you if you resign before they give you a chance.

Blitzacken Will Ride At Charles Town
CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—Jockey Milton Blitzacken, leading rider at the Summer meeting of the Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc., stopped off here en route to his home in Somerset, Ohio, and announced that he would return in time for the opening of the seventeen-day Fall meeting opening, Dec. 1.

Blitzacken expects to be fully recovered from a broken shoulder received two weeks ago in a spill at Pascoag, R. I.

More Breakers Ahead
Last Friday we referred to next day's schedule as "a gentler day," one of football's soft spots. It was a soft spot packed with dynamite and nitroglycerine. Such soft spots as Navy beating Penn, Iowa beating Wisconsin and Indiana beating Minnesota.

This should be a lesson to look for "breakers ahead" each week. There are no soft spots. "Down at Dallas," Colonel Bob Neyland told me, "we all have a football picking battle. That means my wife, my two sons and myself. As things stand now, my eight-year-old kid is far ahead of the bunch. He is smart enough to throw form out of the window and just take a guess."

We still insist on trying to follow form and by this date it should be working better. On any event, we'll stick with the western games on big time—Georgia Tech, Boston College and Tulsa. This also includes Williams.

The Roundup
Georgia Tech-Alabama—The toughest pick of the day. A brilliant Tech attack against a powerful Alabama defense. Two of the big teams of the year. We'll string with Tech's Golden Tornado against the Crimson Tide. Offense over defense.

Notre Dame-Michigan—Almost as tough. Two of the best teams of the season. Once more we'll lean to offense and pick Michigan with a more versatile backfield.

Minnesota-Iowa—An important Big Nine meeting. Iowa was good enough last week to beat Wisconsin. Minnesota should be ready for a rebound. Little to choose—the edge to Minnesota.

Yale-Princeton—Another reach into the fogs. Two good young teams. It could be called a tie. Our pick is Yale.

Boston College-Fordham—The B. C. Eagle looks to be well beyond the Fordham Ram. This means both line and backfield.

Ohio State-Illinois—Another Big Nine feature, with Ohio State favored on the winning side.

Notre Dame-Wolverine Tussle Will Decide Top Team of Middle West

Contest Is Natural of Naturals, John Lardner Declares

By JOHN LARDNER

North American Newspaper Alliance

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 — Aside from the fact that Wolverine fur and Hibernian epidermis will fly all over South Bend, and that the winner will probably be ranked as the top team of the middle west for at least a few days, pending further adjustments, the Notre Dame-Michigan game this Saturday is crawling with historical implications.

The last time the Irish and the Wolves met was in 1909, on which occasion Notre Dame, after respectfully playing dead for its lofty opponent in the first eight games of the series, developed an uncouth strain and whipped the mighty Michigan by 11 to 3.

It may have been a coincidence that football relations between the two seats of learning ceased as of next morning.

Allergic To N. D.

On the other hand, maybe not. I have heard it said by citizens who should know that Mr. Flaiding H. Yost, the contemporary wizard of Michigan football and one of the mightiest medicine men on the game's history, was seized by a sudden allergy to Notre Dame and decided to have no further part of the Irish.

Mr. Yost's word was by way of being law in those great days of Ann Arbor athletics. If he boycotted the mobile Celts, they stayed boycotted.

I do not need to say that Mr. Yost applied the chill to Notre Dame out of petty resentment. He was and is a man of spacious character and broad ideals, and a little thing like a defeat would not disturb him. At least, not much.

I have seen Mr. Yost replay a lost ball game, with the help of a bridge lamp and a visitor's hat, as long as six hours consecutively. On the other hand, I have seen him replay the victories just as long. He took the bitter with the sweet, and there was always a great deal more of the latter to be taken during the old man's consulship at Michigan.

Being a cagey fellow with a quote, Mr. Yost has neither affirmed nor denied the rumor that it was he who gave Notre Dame the perpetual brushoff. It is a good trick neither to affirm nor deny when, like Mr. Yost, you disburse as long as fifty minutes without reaching the end of a paragraph. However, the coach in his heyday possessed an exceptionally deft set of tonsils.

Yost's Blessing

Michigan and Notre Dame were and the natural athletic rivals, geographically and qualitatively. It is high time they were getting together again, and I am happy to see that the reunion will have the benedictions of Mr. Yost himself, who plans to visit South Bend and smile indiscriminately on both sides, though rooting with decorum for a Maize and Blue triumph.

If he ever had anything against the Irish, I guess they can consider themselves forgiven.

Whether the Irish will forgive is something else again. Thirty years of boycott—the present schedule was made up a couple of years ago—are bound to leave wounds. Then there is the matter of the pre-1909 record, which constitutes a grease spot on the South Bend shield.

Army, Navy, Southern California, and other traditional playmates of Notre Dame may find it hard to believe that any college ever licked those constant killers eight games in a row. The answer is that things were different in those days, the days when Michigan practiced chronic torture on the men of South Bend.

One of the games was the first game of intercollegiate football ever played by a Notre Dame team. The year was 1887, and the score was 8 to 0 for Michigan. For some years thereafter the Irish were almost unknown nationally, in a football sense. Michigan, on the other hand, was "champion of the west" more often than not, and one of the game's mightiest powers.

The modern touch did not overtake the series till 1909—and it did not get a firm grip, because the series promptly ended. You know what Notre Dame is today. Michigan has remained more or less what it was. The reunion is a natural of naturals, and I am glad Mr. Yost will be on hand to ascertain whether the Irish are still as upplify as they were the last time he saw them.

Bedwell Will Have 15 Horses for Meet

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—H. G. Bedwell, who headed the list of American trainers six times in succession from 1912 to 1917, will have fifteen thoroughbreds on the grounds during the Fall meeting of the Charles Town Jockey Club, Dec. 1-19.

Jockey P. Remerscheid will accompany the Bedwell string following the close of the Maryland season at Bowie.

Delaware Eleven Drills Hard for Western Maryland

Freshmen Using Maryland Plays Complete Passes on Varsity

NEWARK, Del., Nov. 12 (AP)—The University of Delaware football team today wound up a week's intensive drills for its game with Western Maryland on Saturday, when the Green Terrors from Maryland will attempt to break off a twenty-game Delaware winning streak.

The game will be played in Wilmington park. Coach Bill Murray of the Blue Hens told his charges at the beginning of the week they would have to play better football than they have displayed in their recent efforts if they hope to down Western Marylanders.

In a scrimmage session, the fourth team which is comprised almost entirely of freshmen used Western Maryland plays to advantage. Using Green Terror formations, the combination of Jim Yalls and Bill Glisson bombarded the varsity with passes which clicked regularly.

Murray has temporarily shifted Dan Wood, a second string halfback who is above average on pass defense, into the left halfback post in place of Walt Paul, and it is likely that Wood will get the starting nod on Saturday.

Tri-Captain Hugh Bogovich, who suffered an injured wrist in the Swarthmore game last week, was not in uniform, although Murray expects him to be ready for action by Saturday's encounter. Bogovich, an end, is expected to harry Western Maryland's passers if he is able to play.

The Blue Hens, with the weight averages in their favor, will be out for their fourth victory in a series which started in 1903. The Green Terrors have won six games.

Jack O'Brien, Former Light-Heavy, Dies

Colorful Career Comes to an End After Operation

Most Famous Fight Was with Stanley Ketchell in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, the colorful, fast character and ring great who admitted he was the best light-heavyweight in modern boxing history, died today. He was 64.

The clever, sharp-punching ring general who started as a light-weight, fought his way up to become undefeated world light-heavyweight champion and an unsuccessful claimant of the heavy-weight crown—although he never weighed more than 170 pounds—died in a hospital after an operation. O'Brien, whose real name was Joseph Francis Anthony Hagen, had come here November 3 from his home in Ventnor, N. J.

Retired in 1912

Since his retirement in 1912—after a sixteen-year career during which he lost only five of 184 fights—O'Brien had been of the leading exponents of the reducing system of physical culture for business men and women. For years he operated a large gymnasium on Broadway but more recently had built in real estate in suburban Philadelphia.

His long ring career was studied with highlights. As a youngster of 138 pounds, he whipped the great Dal Hawkins in twenty-rounds in 1899. The same year, he fought a twenty-five round draw with the then lightweight champion, Frank Erne. He knocked out Bob Fitzsimmons in thirteen rounds for the light-heavyweight crown in 1905—and promptly turned his back on the title to campaign as a heavyweight. He fought such standouts as Tommy Burns, Jack Johnson, Jack Blackburn and Fireman Jim Flynn in his futile attempt to become head man of the heavies, but he never was more than a slightly-heavy middleweight.

But of all his fights, the most famous was his first tussle with the Michigan assassin, Stanley Ketchell. A brawl that is still regarded among old-timers as one of the wildest ring classics. They met in a ten-rounder in the old Pits, Derr and Carroll House Mart down on Twentieth-fourth street near Lexington avenue, and after nine rounds of blistering battling, Ketchell turned loose a haymaker in the tenth. It caught Jack on the chin, lifted him clear off the floor and deposited him across the ring, with his head in the corner yard box that preceded the present-day ring bucket. Jack was out cold throughout the referee's count, but at "nine," the bell saved him. So the fight is listed in his record as a no decision affair.

Was Own Manager

Always his own manager, Jack liked nothing better than to travel long distances to fight. Two years before the Ketchell fight he had gone to England and defeated Britain's light-heavyweight and heavyweight champions. So, when Jim Jeffries retired as heavyweight boss in 1905, Jack joined the big group of claimants of the crown. In November of 1906 he fought a 20-round draw with Tommy Burns, the leading claimant, but early in 1907, Burns came back to outpoint him in twenty rounds and was recognized as champion.

FATE OF WMIL WILL BE DECIDED ON SATURDAY

Fate of the Western Maryland Intercollegiate League's approaching basketball season will not be decided until Saturday morning.

Representatives of schools in the circuit met yesterday afternoon at Beall high school, Frostburg, to decide the fate of the loop, but the matter was sidetracked in favor of other subjects.

Arthur P. Smith, principal of Central high school, Lonaconing, and president of the league, said yesterday loop officials will meet at 10 a. m. Saturday in the board of education offices here to decide the fate of the circuit.

Fort Knox Eleven And Steelers Will Clash for Charity

Sunday's Game Is Expected To Draw 40,000 or Better

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12 — A crowd of 40,000 or better is expected to witness the Pittsburgh Steeler-Fort Knox Army football game Sunday afternoon in Pitt Stadium at 2 o'clock. All proceeds from the contest will go towards the building and maintenance of a U. S. O.-Variety Canteen near the Pennsylvania Station to be used by the boys in Uncle Sam's service.

When the game was first booked last week, sponsors of the contest, the chamber of commerce and civic leaders thought it would draw from 15,000 to 20,000 fans, but the Steelers' continued good play against Detroit last Sunday in a game which they won by the overwhelming score of 35 to 7, and the Fort Knox team's surprising showing against the Iowa Pre-Flight eleven "made" the coming battle and it came on like wild-fire the past few days.

A throng of 40,000, and it is highly probable it will go much higher, is now in the making, assuring the success of the Pittsburgh canteen with enough funds left over to run the building for a year or more. Every bit of profit from the game will be turned over to the fund. The only expense involved will be $2,000 used as traveling expenses to bring the Fort Knox players here. There will be a few incidentals, but will not amount to much, and a profit of $50,000 is possible.

The Fort Knox squad is expected to arrive either Friday or Saturday and hold a final drill before the big game. The Steelers will resume practice Thursday after a three-day vacation awarded the players for their splendid showing against Detroit and their tremendous surge of late which netted five wins in the last six starts.

100 Thoroughbreds Now at Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—More than 100 thoroughbreds are already quartered on the grounds of the Charles Town Jockey Club, Inc., awaiting the opening of the 17-day Fall Meeting, Dec. 1-19.

Claude Feltner, youthful Virginia trainer, who has saddled nearly 50 winners this year, for his best season since branching out for himself after serving an apprenticeship under his father Charles M. Feltner, veteran conditioner, has 12 horses under his care here.

Coachless Team Unbeaten, Untied

ROBY, Texas, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Roby high school football team has played five games without a coach—and it's unbeaten and untied. Jesse Lee Beene, the coach, entered the army. A supervisor was named, not to coach, but to see that all went well. The boys select their own starting line-up, make their own plays and plan the game strategy.

Bertelli Is Protected

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 12 (AP)—Notre Dame's pass master, Angelo Bertelli, completed only four of eighteen tosses for negligible gains against Army, which brought the comment from Coach Frank Leahy that "Bertelli was the victim of too much protection."

"He had all day to throw whenever he faded back," Leahy reasoned, "but by the same token, the Cadet secondary had all day in which to cover receivers."

Prain Is Recovering

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—Jockey A. "Scotty" Prain, veteran Canadian rider, is convalescing here and awaiting the opening of the seven-day Fall meeting starting Dec. 1.

Prain, who suffered three broken ribs in an accident at Marlboro, returned to the saddle only two days at Pascoag, R. I., when he fractured a small bone in his left leg.

EXTREMES IN EXTREMITY
FINDING yourself in an extreme is likely to call for extreme measures. That is your situation when your partner has expressed glorious confidence in your card playing ability by bidding you beyond your depth—higher than your cards justify. It is also the case when you have done that optimistic bidding yourself, or when you have let your opponents push you too high.

Upon seeing West's lead of the diamond Q and that voluptuous dummy, things looked pretty hopeful to South. But then, as he analyzed his problem, he saw one loser in each major suit, the chance of one in trumps and the necessity of somehow getting rid of one of his losers in hearts and two in diamonds. Setting up the spades appeared the best plan, so he embarked upon it.

Winning the opener with his diamond K, he led to the club K, having decided to count East for the guarded trump Q because West showed long diamonds in the bidding. Hence the club J finesse held, and the A settled the Q. Now for the spades. West came in with his A on the lead of the 4—good fortune indeed. He returned the diamond 9 to the A.

Now the spade K won, for a heart discard, the ruffed spade 7 took out the Q, the heart 7 went to the A, the spade J and 9 furnished discards of the last heart and a diamond, the heart 10 was ruffed by the club 6, and the diamond 7 by the club 10.

Thus a hand which looked pretty tough at one stage produced not only a successful contract, but an extra trick as well, for the defenders' only trick was that won by the spade A.

After East opens the bidding of this deal with 1-Diamond and South passes, what is West's best action?

meal at 3 o'clock in the afternoon —and alone.

It was then that the doorbell rang. Mary crossed to answer it, telling herself firmly she must not subscribe to any more magazines,
no matter how small or pathetic
the boy. She opened the door with a rush of bright refusals on her lips—and screamed.

On the threshold was Bruce Martin, his tweed suit torn, oiled with mud and smeared with dirt, his face bruised and dirty. He looked exhausted. He smiled at her, though, when she screamed. "You don't like tramps, uh?"

She stepped back and held the door open. "Come in!"

But Bruce shook his head, then he grinned as he looked at her bright, trim prettiness. "Not dressed for calling," he muttered.
"Just came to see if you were all right. Looks like you are." He suddenly looked stern and added, "I just wanted to tell you, though—
"I won't listen," Mary cut in sharply. "Not unless you come in and sit down."

He regarded her with amused surprise. "Oh, all right. Don't get violent again, though."

She shut the door and followed him in. "I didn't mean to be rude," but you looked as though you were going to fall down if you didn't sit down. What happened?"

He shrugged. "Car leaped the road last night. I've been helping the local garage man get her out of the ditch all day. Stopped here on the way home to see you before you went to work."

"Excuse me," Mary ran out of the room, to return in the next instant with a pan of hot water, soap and bandages.

"Oh, you wash your guests, do you?" Bruce grinned weakly.

"I certainly do," Mary smiled firmly, "when they haven't a more sense than to cut their face up like this." Deftly she washed and bandaged the long gash in his cheek and on his wrist. "Any more?"

"A afraid not," he grinned lazily.
"You're a mighty handy article,
Bruce. Pretty, too. But you make me dizzy charging around so fast.
Sit down. I want to scold you."

"You couldn't scold a flea right now," scoffed Mary. "Did you have any lunch?"

He considered this carefully. "I had a cup of coffee sometime this morning," he remembered finally.

Mary ran to the kitchen, laid a fresh linen napkin over tray, and on it set the gay pottery dishes on which she had arranged for dinner.

She carried it back and set it on the table. He looked in blank amazement at the broiled chicken, the steaming potato with its yellow chunk of butter, the spinach on the

Plans Are Made To Conduct War Chest Campaign

Drive To Raise $45,000 in Allegany County Will Begin December 3

Plans for conducting Allegany county's War Chest Campaign Dec. 3 to Dec. 13 were outlined and a permanent organization set up at an enthusiastic meeting held in Central Y.M.C.A. last night which was attended by approximately forty persons.

Present were members of the War Appeals Committee appointed by the mayor and city council last March, representatives of various organizations in the city and men from several towns in the county who have been selected as chairmen in their respective communities.

Morgan C. Harris, general chairman of the campaign presided and at the outset of the meeting outlined the purpose of the drive to raise $45,000 in Allegany county, with $24,000 of that amount assigned to Cumberland.

Receiving Fine Co-operation
The chairman declared that there are two fronts in the present war—the battle front and the second the home front. He said everyone should be ready to make whatever sacrifice is necessary, to work on the home front and to whatever they are called upon to do.

Harris asserted that he considered contributions to the campaign would be investments because the money will be used by the U.S.O. and war relief agencies, and will aid the war effort. He declared he is receiving fine co-operation from all parts of the county and predicted a successful campaign, provided every one does his or her share.

Harold W. Smith, outlined how the money raised in the county will be distributed and told how the budget for the county was worked out. He said the local committee was guided by a survey made by the national committee in planning the campaign for Allegany county. He announced the goal for the various towns and then outlined the purposes of each of the organizations which will share in funds collected.

Smith declared all persons must give their support to the drive and said people are now anxious to do something to aid the men and women who are serving in the armed forces as well as to contribute money to alleviate suffering in war-torn countries.

Sacrifices Tended Necessary
Attorney General William C. Walsh, the next speaker, declared "we must arouse the county to the fact that we are in a war and that those of us who stay at home must make sacrifices."

Walsh urged that an effort be made to appeal to all persons in the county who can contribute something to the campaign thereby creating a better patriotic spirit in Cumberland and throughout the county.

YMCA Membership Campaign Opens At Dinner Session

Ninety-three Workers Attend Enthusiastic Kick-Off Meeting

The membership campaign of Central Y.M.C.A. began last evening with a dinner in the club rooms, attended by ninety-three workers and leaders, who have as their goal 1,000 members by November 24.

Following a program of reorganization and refinancing which began a year ago, the Y.M.C.A. is now making an effort to increase its membership, so more persons can actively participate in the association's activities. With the building completely renovated and redecorated, and new management and a new board of directors in charge, the Y.M.C.A. program has been modernized and made to appeal to practically every resident regardless of age.

At the dinner last night, Roy W. Eves, chairman of the campaign presided. John J. Robinson, president of the board of directors, Everett R. Johnson, general secretary and Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools were the speakers. The first report meeting of the teams seeking new memberships and renewals will be held Tuesday, November 17 at 5:45 p. m. in the Y.M.C.A. club rooms. If the enthusiasm of the group which met last night is any indication, the success of the drive is practically assured and a good report should be made Tuesday, Eves said.

€ of C Schedules Panel Discussion For November 19

Government Representatives To Study Labor, Material Shortages

A panel discussion on labor and material shortages, sponsored by the chamber of commerce and originally scheduled for October 16, will be held next Thursday in All Ghan Shrine Country Club, Harold W. Smith, executive secretary of the chamber, announced yesterday.

The original meeting date was cancelled because of the flood here. The entire visiting panel that had been slated to speak before has been secured for the new date, Smith said, although there may be some changes in local persons who will participate.

Smith said yesterday the chamber is fortunate in again obtaining federal representatives to discuss the vital problems of labor and material.

Heading the panel discussion will be R. Floyd Cronwell, supervisor of education and occupational information of the United States Department of Commerce, as moderator; Kenneth Douthy, executive assistant to the director of the War Manpower Commission, who will direct the discussion on labor shortages; and Roland S. Valle, chief of the consumer branch of the Office of Civilian Supply of the War Production Board, who will handle stock shortages.

T. M. Chandless, priorities district manager for Maryland of WPB, will attend the meeting to answer any questions that may arise pertaining to priorities.

Attendance at the meeting is not limited to members of the chamber of commerce but is open to interested business representatives. Tickets can be obtained at the chamber of commerce office, Liberty Trust building.

School Girl Is Struck by Car

Pauline Kamauff, Ocean, Hit as She Crosses Road after Leaving Bus

An Ocean school girl was slightly injured yesterday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile as she started to cross the highway to her home after leaving a school bus.

The girl is Pauline Kamauff, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kamauff. She was treated in Miners hospital, Frostburg, for lacerations of her right leg and a bruised eye. After receiving treatment she was discharged.

State Trooper M. G. Hart, who investigated, said the girl was struck by the automobile operated by John L. Winters, Midland, at 4 o'clock.

Winters, according to the officer, started to pass the bus as it moved off after the girl had been discharged. He told Hart, the officer said, that he did not see the girl as she walked from behind the bus.

As the girl came into sight, Winters told the officer, he swerved sharply to the left and the girl was struck by the right front fender of his car.

Winters took the girl to the hospital.

A charge of reckless driving has been entered against Winters who will be given a hearing before Magistrate Thomas Stakem, Midland, Monday night.

Roy C. Lottig Is Elected President Of Kiwanis Club

Prof. I. C. Diehl Speaks on Latin America at Luncheon Meeting

Roy C. Lottig, manager of the Coca Cola Bottling Works, was elected president of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at its regular luncheon meeting held yesterday in Central Y. M. C. A. He will succeed Forrest Brown as head of the organization. Other officers elected were Irving Rosenbaum, vice president, and John J. Robinson, treasurer.

Election of officers preceded an address by Prof. Ivan C. Diehl, head of the Geography department of Frostburg State Teachers college, who spoke on "Latin America, Backward Child of the Western Hemisphere."

"High Pressure Wooling"
Until the recent sudden change to "high pressure wooling" of Latin America, there was a definite lack of interest in that continent, Prof. Diehl said, partly because it is off the accustomed trade routes, partly because the people of the United States are ignorant of its geography and its history but mainly because "we will not admit the evidences of culture" there.

Citing some of the reasons for the continent being backward, Prof. Diehl said the continent was more or less isolated until 1914 when the Panama canal was opened, but, he added, there are other reasons.

Some of these he designated as topography, climate, winds and vegetation. Three-fourths of the area of the continent, Prof. Diehl said, are in the unfavorable tropic area, and the climate in South America ranges from very hot in some sections to cold in mountainous regions. One section of the country, he explained, is very wet and another is extremely dry.

Speaking of vegetation Prof. Diehl referred to the Amazon basin where exists a "tropical rain forest" of very dense foliage. Life there is "creeping, crawling and flying" and most people live along the rivers.

In the tropical grass area, he continued, dwell people who live by following animals. A desert area occupies much of the west coast. The Vale of Paradise in Chile and the Pampas area are the sections most suited for habitation.

The continent, he explained, is handicapped by the lack of good harbors with only one on the west coast. The best harbor is that at Rio de Janeiro, the speaker related, which is large enough to hold the combined navies at the same time.

The 3,500 mile long Andean mountain chain provides a transportation difficulty, Prof. Diehl said. Lowest railroads across the mountain are all elevations of 10,000 feet and range as high as 14,000 feet. The lowest there, he explained, is higher than the highest in the United States.

People on the continent, he related, are subject to diseases such as malaria, yellow fever, hook worm, berri berri and dysentery and their general condition suffers as a result of the poor temperature and climate.

The percentage of white people in South America is small, Prof. Diehl declared, adding that there has been much inter-marrying of races. Natives do not believe in working and live from hand to mouth, he continued, asserting that if South America is going to assume its proper position among the nations of the world, the countries of the continent must "import capital, brains and brawn from other nations."

Guests present were Capt. William B. Smith, United States Army, and A. Trago Brust, Jr.

TOWN CLOCK REVIVED—Idle for the past fifteen years, the old "town clock" in the tower of the First Christian church, Bedford street, has returned to active duty, thanks to the ability of A. L. Marple, local jeweler, who has placed the old machinery back in working order. The bells or chimes toll every fifteen minutes. The clock was installed when the church was built in 1848 and the bells were added in 1861 during the Civil war. The church was built by St. Luke's Lutheran congregation. In June, 1927 the present St. Luke's church on Columbia street was dedicated and the old building was deserted until August, 1928, when the First Christian church moved in. Known as the "town clock" since 1861, the bells for many years were rung to denote the death of a member of the congregation.

Ration Violation Claim Is Denied By Yankelevitz
Case of Local Gas Dealer Is Taken under Advisement at OPA Hearing

Lewis Yankelevitz, Cumberland gas dealer, denied OPA investigators' claims that he had violated ration rules governing the sale of gasoline at a hearing Wednesday in Baltimore before John P. Ryan, designated a presiding officer by the Office of Price Administration to hear violations cases.

The case, one of the first involving Western Maryland dealers, was taken under advisement by Judge Ryan at the conclusion of the testimony.

Statements by OPA agents—Arthur Perelman, Frederick Henry Barclay, Jr., and S. Carroll Epplein—that Yankelevitz had admitted selling gas to a ration-book holder who offered $5 tickets to him, and had also admitted accepting tickets as high as A-6, not acceptable by gas dealers until next spring, were denied by Yankelevitz on the stand.

Yankelevitz said he signed a statement last September 12, the date of the alleged infraction, admitting the violations, but at the time he declared, he did not really know what he was signing.

Judge Ryan said he would study the written testimony and render judgment in a few days. If found guilty, Yankelevitz's gas-selling license may be suspended for a period of time decided on by the OPA board at Washington.

County Council To Make Study of Child Delinquency

Civic and Welfare Groups Unite To Find Possible Solution

Plans were begun last night, at a meeting in the board of education building, to organize a Co-ordinating Council for the purpose of studying the problem of juvenile delinquency and to evolve a solution to improve the general trend.

The meeting was called through the interest of the Allegany County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations of which Mrs. J. Orville Pier is president. It was attended by representatives of various organizations interested in child and civic welfare.

Spitznas Leads Discussion
James E. Spitznas, state supervisor of public schools, presided and led a discussion on local juvenile delinquency problems, which included possible solutions, probable causes and the work of various welfare, civic and legal groups which recognize and face the problem.

A committee was appointed to work out a plan of organization for the council was named, including the Rev. Raymond W. Cooke, Miss Jeanette Bonig, Raymond C. Lalor, Miss Lillian C. Compton, Harold J. McNally and Miss Anna Sloan.

Condon, Police Boys' Club and Raymond C. Lalor, executive Cumberland Council Boy Scouts of America.

Mayor Presented Gift
The history of the old clock dates back ninety-four years to 1848 when it was presented to St. Luke's Lutheran congregation by Mayor Thomas Shriver.

Two churches were being built in Cumberland at that time—St. Luke's Lutheran and St. Peter and Paul Catholic—and the mayor offered the clock to the congregation of the first church finished. St. Luke's church won the prize.

During the ministry of the Rev. George H. Vosseler, who served from 1858 to 1866, the bells or chimes were installed in 1861 and from that time the timepiece was always referred to as the "town clock."

Clock Idle Since 1927
The Rev. Dr. H. Hall sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, said that the clock and chimes have been inactive since 1927 when the congregation left the old building and moved into its present church on Columbia street. The First Christian church recently purchased the building after having rented from St. Luke's since August, 1928.

The sanctuary has been completely remodeled and the high ceiling lowered nine feet to give the interior of the structure a cathedral appearance. Dr. Packard says the work cost $12,500.

In delving into the history of the ninety-four-year-old structure, it is revealed that Henry Ward Beecher, known as the "Prince of the American Pulpit," preached here about 1868, and sixteen adult members and many children of the congregation died during the cholera epidemic that swept the city in 1853, the burials usually taking place at night.

In bygone days the bells were rung whenever a member of the congregation died. The large bell was sounded when an adult died and one of the smaller bells when a child was taken by death.

Resembles Printing Press
Dr. Packard said that the machinery which controls the clock and bells resembles a large printing press. Rods are attached to the four bells, the clock is controlled by cables and a large pendulum extends down through the floor of the tower.

The largest of the four bells tolls

Robbers of Local Confectionery Are Captured in W. Va.

Men Who Held Up Penn Avenue Store Get Heavy Prison Terms

The state's attorney's office yesterday announced that the armed holdup of the Penn Avenue Confectionery last May 16 has been solved and three of the four culprits have been arrested in West Virginia for another robbery. Two received heavy prison terms.

Entered Confectionery
According to Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator, a man by the name of James H. Leadbetter, Cincinnati, O., entered the confectionery at night and held up Lee Kline at gunpoint. He ordered Kline to place the money from the cash register on a piece of paper.

After Kline complied Leadbetter rolled the money up into the paper and started hurriedly for the door. At this point a woman customer entered and screamed. Leadbetter, who was described as a youth, became frightened and not only dropped the money but also the revolver he had brandished before Kline. Leadbetter fired twice during the hectic period but no one was hit.

Leadbetter joined three companions in a car parked nearby and they roared off. Police were notified but the culprits escaped. Later county authorities traced the quartet to Clarksburg, W. Va. Several weeks ago West Virginia authorities nabbed three of the four for a previous holdup in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Given Long Terms

When tried last week in West Virginia Leadbetter was sentenced to six years in the West Virginia State Industrial School and Jesse Wilfong, an older companion, was sent to the prison at Moundsville for ten years. One of the women in the group, Mary Metcalf, will be sentenced later. Another woman who was a member of the quartet is still at large.

'Blackout' Mars School Program

AHS Has 45-Minute Power Failure; 1,000 Attend Fort Hill Program

An unwelcome visitor in the form of a forty-five minute power failure prevailed at the start of the "Patrons Night" program yesterday at Allegany high school but the unfortunate incident failed to stop the show, a feature of American Education Week.

700 Persons Attend
Seven hundred persons, most of whom were parents of students, were in the building visiting the class rooms and meeting the teachers when all of a sudden all lights with the exception of a few in the corridors and auditorium did a fade-out.

The unannounced blackout, however, failed to scare anybody and parents continued to chat with teachers in the darkened rooms while a number of the visitors went to the auditorium where the orchestra played and the program got under way. An electrician, who was among the visitors, found the source of trouble, which was caused by two fuses on the main switch going haywire. It was the first time that such an incident occurred at the school since he has been principal, Ralph R. Webster said.

The program comprised a pageant, "Cavalcade of America," selections by two choruses and the orchestra and a talk by Principal Webster on the new school Victory Corps program.

1,000 Visit Fort Hill
One thousand persons attended the "Patrons Night" program at Fort Hill high school where the choral pageant, "If He Could Speak" was presented by the students in the auditorium.

The musical program comprising selections by the school band, the Cappella choir and the junior glee club.

Parents met with the teachers in the various class rooms prior to the start of the one hour and thirty minute program in the auditorium.

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, said that these rails were in excellent condition and the city realized $19 a ton on the transaction. The rails will be re-rolled into twenty feet sections and used as reinforcing bars.

All-Day Prayer Service Will Be Held Here Today

Young Evangelist Will Preach at First Baptist Revival Tonight

An all-day prayer service will be observed in First Baptist church today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. in connection with the revival campaign conducted by Miss Betty Weekland, girl preacher.

The following persons are in charge of each hour during the day: Mrs. Edwin W. Saylor, Mrs. Virgil Rice, Mrs. Jesse Judy, Mrs. Richard Metlick, Mrs. Frank Sowerby, Mrs. A. D. Sherman, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, Mrs. Henry T. Humphreys, Mrs. Cain, Mrs. William S. Goodwin, the Rev. Edwin W. Saylor and Mrs. Benjamin J. Moreland.

At 7:45 o'clock this evening Miss Weekland will preach from the theme, "How to Get Rich Quickly and Stay Rich."

In the service last evening Miss Weekland sang "Sometime" with organ accompaniment by Mrs. Kathryn Carson.

As she launched into her message on "Which Church Does the Lord Jesus Attend in Cumberland?" Miss Weekland took her text from Matthew 18:20, "Where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I."

"The Lord Jesus set an example by going to worship on the holy day of the week and because He said, 'Thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness, we too make it a point to join in the worship services on Sundays,' Miss Weekland asserted.

"People go to church for many different reasons. Some go to a particular church because their ancestors attended the church. Some men go to church because their wives go and some stay away because their wives go. Some go for the social contacts they make. Some go for business reasons. But all our church going would be in vain unless we go to meet in His name and to gather in His presence. When we meet in the name of Jesus, let us remember that Jesus means Savior."

"To meet in His name means that we have recognized the fact of sin. We have recognized the heinousness of sin and its power. We have been conscious of the fact that there was no cure for sin—the church could not cure it—and we have seen that He had power to release us from the bondage of sin and have let Him perform that miracle of grace in our hearts."

Mentioning that some young people go to church to make acquaintances the young preacher declared that the church is the place for young people to meet and it is a good thing to tie their lives up socially with the church.
